RESPONDING TO THE SEPTEMBER 11 TERRORIST ATTACKS

The President and members of Congress from both parties are implementing a $40 billion emergency response package to help deal with the tragic events of September 11. This funding will ensure that the U.S. has the resources to respond to and recover from the attacks and to protect national security.

Billions of dollars have already been released to assist in New York and the other impacted areas – and more funding is on the way. Examples of the important activities being funded in New York and the other areas include:

- ☑ Federal Emergency Management Agency, $2 billion: These funds will support overall emergency assistance in New York and other affected jurisdictions. This includes costs associated with debris removal and emergency protective measures, as well as individual and family assistance, search and rescue, and other disaster assistance efforts.

- ☑ Department of Health and Human Services, $126.2 million: These funds will provide assistance for the health-related needs of the disaster-affected areas of the New York metropolitan area, Virginia, Maryland, and the District of Columbia.

- ☑ Small Business Administration, $100 million: These funds will support $400 million in low-interest disaster loans for renters, homeowners, and businesses in designated disaster areas.

- ☑ Department of the Treasury, $48.4 million: These funds will support the immediate response and recovery needs of the approximately 1,000 Treasury employees who were located in or near the World Trade Center complex, most of whose offices were destroyed.

- ☑ Department of Labor, $29 million: These amounts will provide funding for: the Department of Labor's Dislocated Workers program to provide temporary jobs to assist in clean-up and restoration efforts in New York; assistance to cover immediate information technology and other costs of disaster recovery for unemployment insurance claims processing that need to be relocated; and the Occupational Safety and Health Administration's monitoring of health and safety at the disaster sites.

- ☑ Department of the Interior, $3.1 million: These amounts will provide funding for National Park Service and U.S. Park Police emergency response costs in New York City and Washington, DC, as well as increased security patrols in both cities.

- ☑ Commodity Futures Trading Commission, $200,000: The Commodity Futures Trading Commission's New York office, which was located in the World Trade Center, will use these funds to purchase computers and office equipment for its temporary space.

OTHER EXAMPLES OF FEDERAL RESPONSE ACTIVITIES

- Federal Emergency Management Agency: The President has authorized FEMA to provide an unprecedented level of assistance. For example, the President has authorized FEMA to pay for 100 percent of public assistance activities in New York and at the Pentagon (typically, states pay 25 percent of these costs). This marks the first time FEMA will cover the entire share of public assistance expenses. Examples of public assistance activities include debris removal and repair and restoration of public facilities. In addition:

FOR MORE INFORMATION ABOUT THE PRESIDENT'S INITIATIVES PLEASE VISIT WWW.WHITEHOUSE.GOV

- FEMA has assigned 11 Federal agencies to respond to the attack. Among the Federal agencies tasked to respond were the Department of Defense, Army Corps of Engineers, USDA Forest Service, Public Health Service, and EPA.
- FEMA has called up 10 FEMA Urban Search and Rescue task forces from around the Nation to assist in the efforts in New York and Virginia. Urban Search and Rescue task forces are teams of local emergency responders that have specialized FEMA training and equipment for rescuing people in the wake of disasters such as earthquakes and terrorist events.
- Examples of additional FEMA action:
  - ✓ The agency has also been working with local governments on the debris removal efforts.
  - ✓ There are currently 3,571 Federal personnel, including 1,596 from FEMA, working in response to these incidents.
  - ✓ Through September 27, FEMA had obligated $240.5 million in New York and Virginia.
  - ✓ FEMA has established Disaster Field Offices in New York City and Virginia where disaster victims may seeks assistance. FEMA also is operating a toll-free hotline for information and registering disaster victims.
  - ✓ Through September 27, 115,756 tons of debris had been removed from the WTC site. The estimate for total debris at the WTC is 1.2 million tons.
  - ✓ FEMA is helping city, state, and volunteer organizations organize a long-term strategy for using the millions of dollars in donated funds.
  - ✓ Working with the American Red Cross and other volunteer and Federal agencies, FEMA has been providing humanitarian and financial assistance to disaster victims.

➢ Department of Education:

- Provided $5 million for Rehabilitation Services Administration to help individuals who suffered disabling physical or mental trauma as a result of the WTC attacks, as well as funds to help previously disabled Americans who lost jobs, rehabilitation or other support structures as a result of the attack.
- Provided $4 million to New York City schools and $1.7 million to New York state schools for Project SERV grants that support counseling and mental health services for affected children.
- Department of Education also established a loan forgiveness program to help those who live or work in NY City by providing temporary relief from student loan payments.

➢ Department of Labor. Labor is working to ensure the safety of the World Trade Center site for rescue personnel and is providing financial assistance to dislocated workers.

- Labor has also released $25 million of dislocated worker assistance to the State of New York to create temporary jobs to help with cleanup efforts.
- About 180 Occupational Safety & Health Administration (OSHA) staff have been deployed to provide around-the-clock safety and health assistance.

➢ Department of Justice

- The President signed into law legislation that will speed payment of $152,000 in compensation to the family of each fallen police officer, firefighter and rescuer through the Public Safety Officers' Benefits program.
- The President also signed into law a victims compensation benefit program for expeditious payment of compensation to victims or their relatives for losses suffered as a result of the terrorist attacks. The program establishes a special claim process in the Department of Justice.

➢ Health and Human Services (HHS). More than 570 (HHS) personnel are deployed in the New York City area to augment medical personnel assisting victims and recovery workers.

- HHS mental health services personnel and U.S. Public Health Service reservists are providing services to Federal responders and the public.
- The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) has deployed personnel to assist the New York City Health Department in patient care and follow-up needs.
- HHS has also made available about 100 doctors, nurses and other health care professionals to staff two treatment stations to provide round-the-clock medical care to rescue and recovery workers toiling in the aftermath of the attack in New York City.

➢ Small Business Administration (SBA). Along with FEMA and other Federal agencies, SBA's Disaster Loan Program has set up Disaster Field Offices in New York and Virginia where disaster victims may come for assistance.

- SBA has sent out 5,677 applications for low-interest disaster loans. SBA has directly assisted 4,598 individuals and businesses with loan applications and other inquiries.
- SBA has already approved disaster loans totaling $6,052,900.
- SBA is also conducting information workshops at different locations around New York to reach as many disaster victims as possible.

➢ Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). EPA is monitoring the disaster sites to ensure that rescue workers and the public are not facing dangerous environmental risks.

- Over 200 EPA personnel have participated in the response to the terrorist attacks in New York, Pennsylvania and Virginia.
- EPA has been responsible for cleaning and washing down of all workers, equipment, and resources employed during the rescue stage.
- The Agency is sampling air, water, and asbestos as well as conducting radiological and dust monitoring.
- EPA is also vacuuming and cleaning sidewalks, streets, and buildings in the World Trade Center area.

➢ Army Corps of Engineers (Corps). Corps structural engineering teams have been surveying buildings and structures in New York City so the city can assure the safety of search, rescue and debris-removal operations in and around the affected areas. The Corps is also developing a debris operations plan for the New York City. In addition, the Corps is considering potential improvements to a harbor facility for removing debris by barge.

➢ Internal Revenue Service: The IRS and Treasury have extended deadlines for all taxpayers affected by the tragedy.

- IRS released new information to help the public use charitable organizations and has sped up the processing of requests for tax-exempt status from new charities formed to assist victims of the September 11 attacks.
- IRS created a special e-mail address for businesses to send their questions to the IRS and get answers about extensions and other relief stemming from the disasters.
- IRS issued a release reminding taxpayers who suffered property losses because of the September 11 terrorist attacks that they may get a quick tax refund by claiming these losses on an amended return for 2000.

Subject: House Judiciary Markup Today @ 2pm

Notwithstanding earlier emails, its been confirmed that Chairman Sensenbrenner plans to oppose all unnecessarily controversial "deal breaker" amendments today. Contrary to their original request, his staff does not absolutely require detailed feedback on particular amendments before the markup; instead, they have asked that we review all amendments they send us (I will continue forwarding) and be able to provide feedback during the markup and answer questions. The Chairman plans to proceed title by title, nonetheless OLA staff should ensure that their subject people are present during consideration of their issues. (You can always count on unpredictability in this Committee...). Thanks.

RESPONDING TO THE SEPTEMBER 11 TERRORIST ATTACKS

The President and members of Congress from both parties are implementing a $40 billion emergency response package to help deal with the tragic events of September 11. This funding will ensure that the U.S. has the resources to respond to and recover from the attacks and to protect national security.

Billions of dollars have already been released to assist in New York and the other impacted areas – and more funding is on the way. Examples of the important activities being funded in New York and the other areas include:

- ☑ Federal Emergency Management Agency, $2 billion: These funds will support overall emergency assistance in New York and other affected jurisdictions. This includes costs associated with debris removal and emergency protective measures, as well as individual and family assistance, search and rescue, and other disaster assistance efforts.

- ☑ Department of Health and Human Services, $126.2 million: These funds will provide assistance for the health-related needs of the disaster-affected areas of the New York metropolitan area, Virginia, Maryland, and the District of Columbia.

- ☑ Small Business Administration, $100 million: These funds will support $400 million in low-interest disaster loans for renters, homeowners, and businesses in designated disaster areas.

- ☑ Department of the Treasury, $48.4 million: These funds will support the immediate response and recovery needs of the approximately 1,000 Treasury employees who were located in or near the World Trade Center complex, most of whose offices were destroyed.

- ☑ Department of Labor, $29 million: These amounts will provide funding for: the Department of Labor's Dislocated Workers program to provide temporary jobs to assist in clean-up and restoration efforts in New York; assistance to cover immediate information technology and other costs of disaster recovery for unemployment insurance claims processing that need to be relocated; and the Occupational Safety and Health Administration's monitoring of health and safety at the disaster sites.

- ☑ Department of the Interior, $3.1 million: These amounts will provide funding for National Park Service and U.S. Park Police emergency response costs in New York City and Washington, DC, as well as increased security patrols in both cities.

- ☑ Commodity Futures Trading Commission, $200,000: The Commodity Futures Trading Commission's New York office, which was located in the World Trade Center, will use these funds to purchase computers and office equipment for its temporary space.

OTHER EXAMPLES OF FEDERAL RESPONSE ACTIVITIES

- Federal Emergency Management Agency: The President has authorized FEMA to provide an unprecedented level of assistance. For example, the President has authorized FEMA to pay for 100 percent of public assistance activities in New York and at the Pentagon (typically, states pay 25 percent of these costs). This marks the first time FEMA will cover the entire share of public assistance expenses. Examples of public assistance activities include debris removal and repair and restoration of public facilities. In addition:

FOR MORE INFORMATION ABOUT THE PRESIDENT'S INITIATIVES PLEASE VISIT WWW.WHITEHOUSE.GOV

- FEMA has assigned 11 Federal agencies to respond to the attack. Among the Federal agencies tasked to respond were the Department of Defense, Army Corps of Engineers, USDA Forest Service, Public Health Service, and EPA.
- FEMA has called up 10 FEMA Urban Search and Rescue task forces from around the Nation to assist in the efforts in New York and Virginia. Urban Search and Rescue task forces are teams of local emergency responders that have specialized FEMA training and equipment for rescuing people in the wake of disasters such as earthquakes and terrorist events.
- Examples of additional FEMA action:
  - ✓ The agency has also been working with local governments on the debris removal efforts.
  - ✓ There are currently 3,571 Federal personnel, including 1,596 from FEMA, working in response to these incidents.
  - ✓ Through September 27, FEMA had obligated $240.5 million in New York and Virginia.
  - ✓ FEMA has established Disaster Field Offices in New York City and Virginia where disaster victims may seeks assistance. FEMA also is operating a toll-free hotline for information and registering disaster victims.
  - ✓ Through September 27, 115,756 tons of debris had been removed from the WTC site. The estimate for total debris at the WTC is 1.2 million tons.
  - ✓ FEMA is helping city, state, and volunteer organizations organize a long-term strategy for using the millions of dollars in donated funds.
  - ✓ Working with the American Red Cross and other volunteer and Federal agencies, FEMA has been providing humanitarian and financial assistance to disaster victims.

➢ Department of Education:

- Provided $5 million for Rehabilitation Services Administration to help individuals who suffered disabling physical or mental trauma as a result of the WTC attacks, as well as funds to help previously disabled Americans who lost jobs, rehabilitation or other support structures as a result of the attack.
- Provided $4 million to New York City schools and $1.7 million to New York state schools for Project SERV grants that support counseling and mental health services for affected children.
- Department of Education also established a loan forgiveness program to help those who live or work in NY City by providing temporary relief from student loan payments.

➢ Department of Labor. Labor is working to ensure the safety of the World Trade Center site for rescue personnel and is providing financial assistance to dislocated workers.

- Labor has also released $25 million of dislocated worker assistance to the State of New York to create temporary jobs to help with cleanup efforts.
- About 180 Occupational Safety & Health Administration (OSHA) staff have been deployed to provide around-the-clock safety and health assistance.

➢ Department of Justice

- The President signed into law legislation that will speed payment of $152,000 in compensation to the family of each fallen police officer, firefighter and rescuer through the Public Safety Officers' Benefits program.
- The President also signed into law a victims compensation benefit program for expeditious payment of compensation to victims or their relatives for losses suffered as a result of the terrorist attacks. The program establishes a special claim process in the Department of Justice.

➢ Health and Human Services (HHS). More than 570 (HHS) personnel are deployed in the New York City area to augment medical personnel assisting victims and recovery workers.

- HHS mental health services personnel and U.S. Public Health Service reservists are providing services to Federal responders and the public.
- The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) has deployed personnel to assist the New York City Health Department in patient care and follow-up needs.
- HHS has also made available about 100 doctors, nurses and other health care professionals to staff two treatment stations to provide round-the-clock medical care to rescue and recovery workers toiling in the aftermath of the attack in New York City.

➢ Small Business Administration (SBA). Along with FEMA and other Federal agencies, SBA's Disaster Loan Program has set up Disaster Field Offices in New York and Virginia where disaster victims may come for assistance.

- SBA has sent out 5,677 applications for low-interest disaster loans. SBA has directly assisted 4,598 individuals and businesses with loan applications and other inquiries.
- SBA has already approved disaster loans totaling $6,052,900.
- SBA is also conducting information workshops at different locations around New York to reach as many disaster victims as possible.

➢ Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). EPA is monitoring the disaster sites to ensure that rescue workers and the public are not facing dangerous environmental risks.

- Over 200 EPA personnel have participated in the response to the terrorist attacks in New York, Pennsylvania and Virginia.
- EPA has been responsible for cleaning and washing down of all workers, equipment, and resources employed during the rescue stage.
- The Agency is sampling air, water, and asbestos as well as conducting radiological and dust monitoring.
- EPA is also vacuuming and cleaning sidewalks, streets, and buildings in the World Trade Center area.

➢ Army Corps of Engineers (Corps). Corps structural engineering teams have been surveying buildings and structures in New York City so the city can assure the safety of search, rescue and debris-removal operations in and around the affected areas. The Corps is also developing a debris operations plan for the New York City. In addition, the Corps is considering potential improvements to a harbor facility for removing debris by barge.

➢ Internal Revenue Service: The IRS and Treasury have extended deadlines for all taxpayers affected by the tragedy.

- IRS released new information to help the public use charitable organizations and has sped up the processing of requests for tax-exempt status from new charities formed to assist victims of the September 11 attacks.
- IRS created a special e-mail address for businesses to send their questions to the IRS and get answers about extensions and other relief stemming from the disasters.
- IRS issued a release reminding taxpayers who suffered property losses because of the September 11 terrorist attacks that they may get a quick tax refund by claiming these losses on an amended return for 2000.

RESPONDING TO THE SEPTEMBER 11 TERRORIST ATTACKS

The President and members of Congress from both parties are implementing a $40 billion emergency response package to help deal with the tragic events of September 11. This funding will ensure that the U.S. has the resources to respond to and recover from the attacks and to protect national security.

Billions of dollars have already been released to assist in New York and the other impacted areas – and more funding is on the way. Examples of the important activities being funded in New York and the other areas include:

- ☑ Federal Emergency Management Agency, $2 billion: These funds will support overall emergency assistance in New York and other affected jurisdictions. This includes costs associated with debris removal and emergency protective measures, as well as individual and family assistance, search and rescue, and other disaster assistance efforts.

- ☑ Department of Health and Human Services, $126.2 million: These funds will provide assistance for the health-related needs of the disaster-affected areas of the New York metropolitan area, Virginia, Maryland, and the District of Columbia.

- ☑ Small Business Administration, $100 million: These funds will support $400 million in low-interest disaster loans for renters, homeowners, and businesses in designated disaster areas.

- ☑ Department of the Treasury, $48.4 million: These funds will support the immediate response and recovery needs of the approximately 1,000 Treasury employees who were located in or near the World Trade Center complex, most of whose offices were destroyed.

- ☑ Department of Labor, $29 million: These amounts will provide funding for: the Department of Labor's Dislocated Workers program to provide temporary jobs to assist in clean-up and restoration efforts in New York; assistance to cover immediate information technology and other costs of disaster recovery for unemployment insurance claims processing that need to be relocated; and the Occupational Safety and Health Administration's monitoring of health and safety at the disaster sites.

- ☑ Department of the Interior, $3.1 million: These amounts will provide funding for National Park Service and U.S. Park Police emergency response costs in New York City and Washington, DC, as well as increased security patrols in both cities.

- ☑ Commodity Futures Trading Commission, $200,000: The Commodity Futures Trading Commission's New York office, which was located in the World Trade Center, will use these funds to purchase computers and office equipment for its temporary space.

OTHER EXAMPLES OF FEDERAL RESPONSE ACTIVITIES

- Federal Emergency Management Agency: The President has authorized FEMA to provide an unprecedented level of assistance. For example, the President has authorized FEMA to pay for 100 percent of public assistance activities in New York and at the Pentagon (typically, states pay 25 percent of these costs). This marks the first time FEMA will cover the entire share of public assistance expenses. Examples of public assistance activities include debris removal and repair and restoration of public facilities. In addition:

FOR MORE INFORMATION ABOUT THE PRESIDENT'S INITIATIVES PLEASE VISIT WWW.WHITEHOUSE.GOV

- FEMA has assigned 11 Federal agencies to respond to the attack. Among the Federal agencies tasked to respond were the Department of Defense, Army Corps of Engineers, USDA Forest Service, Public Health Service, and EPA.
- FEMA has called up 10 FEMA Urban Search and Rescue task forces from around the Nation to assist in the efforts in New York and Virginia. Urban Search and Rescue task forces are teams of local emergency responders that have specialized FEMA training and equipment for rescuing people in the wake of disasters such as earthquakes and terrorist events.
- Examples of additional FEMA action:
  - ✓ The agency has also been working with local governments on the debris removal efforts.
  - ✓ There are currently 3,571 Federal personnel, including 1,596 from FEMA, working in response to these incidents.
  - ✓ Through September 27, FEMA had obligated $240.5 million in New York and Virginia.
  - ✓ FEMA has established Disaster Field Offices in New York City and Virginia where disaster victims may seeks assistance. FEMA also is operating a toll-free hotline for information and registering disaster victims.
  - ✓ Through September 27, 115,756 tons of debris had been removed from the WTC site. The estimate for total debris at the WTC is 1.2 million tons.
  - ✓ FEMA is helping city, state, and volunteer organizations organize a long-term strategy for using the millions of dollars in donated funds.
  - ✓ Working with the American Red Cross and other volunteer and Federal agencies, FEMA has been providing humanitarian and financial assistance to disaster victims.

➢ Department of Education:

- Provided $5 million for Rehabilitation Services Administration to help individuals who suffered disabling physical or mental trauma as a result of the WTC attacks, as well as funds to help previously disabled Americans who lost jobs, rehabilitation or other support structures as a result of the attack.
- Provided $4 million to New York City schools and $1.7 million to New York state schools for Project SERV grants that support counseling and mental health services for affected children.
- Department of Education also established a loan forgiveness program to help those who live or work in NY City by providing temporary relief from student loan payments.

➢ Department of Labor. Labor is working to ensure the safety of the World Trade Center site for rescue personnel and is providing financial assistance to dislocated workers.

- Labor has also released $25 million of dislocated worker assistance to the State of New York to create temporary jobs to help with cleanup efforts.
- About 180 Occupational Safety & Health Administration (OSHA) staff have been deployed to provide around-the-clock safety and health assistance.

➢ Department of Justice

- The President signed into law legislation that will speed payment of $152,000 in compensation to the family of each fallen police officer, firefighter and rescuer through the Public Safety Officers' Benefits program.
- The President also signed into law a victims compensation benefit program for expeditious payment of compensation to victims or their relatives for losses suffered as a result of the terrorist attacks. The program establishes a special claim process in the Department of Justice.

➢ Health and Human Services (HHS). More than 570 (HHS) personnel are deployed in the New York City area to augment medical personnel assisting victims and recovery workers.

- HHS mental health services personnel and U.S. Public Health Service reservists are providing services to Federal responders and the public.
- The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) has deployed personnel to assist the New York City Health Department in patient care and follow-up needs.
- HHS has also made available about 100 doctors, nurses and other health care professionals to staff two treatment stations to provide round-the-clock medical care to rescue and recovery workers toiling in the aftermath of the attack in New York City.

➢ Small Business Administration (SBA). Along with FEMA and other Federal agencies, SBA's Disaster Loan Program has set up Disaster Field Offices in New York and Virginia where disaster victims may come for assistance.

- SBA has sent out 5,677 applications for low-interest disaster loans. SBA has directly assisted 4,598 individuals and businesses with loan applications and other inquiries.
- SBA has already approved disaster loans totaling $6,052,900.
- SBA is also conducting information workshops at different locations around New York to reach as many disaster victims as possible.

➢ Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). EPA is monitoring the disaster sites to ensure that rescue workers and the public are not facing dangerous environmental risks.

- Over 200 EPA personnel have participated in the response to the terrorist attacks in New York, Pennsylvania and Virginia.
- EPA has been responsible for cleaning and washing down of all workers, equipment, and resources employed during the rescue stage.
- The Agency is sampling air, water, and asbestos as well as conducting radiological and dust monitoring.
- EPA is also vacuuming and cleaning sidewalks, streets, and buildings in the World Trade Center area.

➢ Army Corps of Engineers (Corps). Corps structural engineering teams have been surveying buildings and structures in New York City so the city can assure the safety of search, rescue and debris-removal operations in and around the affected areas. The Corps is also developing a debris operations plan for the New York City. In addition, the Corps is considering potential improvements to a harbor facility for removing debris by barge.

➢ Internal Revenue Service: The IRS and Treasury have extended deadlines for all taxpayers affected by the tragedy.

- IRS released new information to help the public use charitable organizations and has sped up the processing of requests for tax-exempt status from new charities formed to assist victims of the September 11 attacks.
- IRS created a special e-mail address for businesses to send their questions to the IRS and get answers about extensions and other relief stemming from the disasters.
- IRS issued a release reminding taxpayers who suffered property losses because of the September 11 terrorist attacks that they may get a quick tax refund by claiming these losses on an amended return for 2000.

RESPONDING TO THE SEPTEMBER 11 TERRORIST ATTACKS

The President and members of Congress from both parties are implementing a $40 billion emergency response package to help deal with the tragic events of September 11. This funding will ensure that the U.S. has the resources to respond to and recover from the attacks and to protect national security.

Billions of dollars have already been released to assist in New York and the other impacted areas – and more funding is on the way. Examples of the important activities being funded in New York and the other areas include:

- ☑ Federal Emergency Management Agency, $2 billion: These funds will support overall emergency assistance in New York and other affected jurisdictions. This includes costs associated with debris removal and emergency protective measures, as well as individual and family assistance, search and rescue, and other disaster assistance efforts.

- ☑ Department of Health and Human Services, $126.2 million: These funds will provide assistance for the health-related needs of the disaster-affected areas of the New York metropolitan area, Virginia, Maryland, and the District of Columbia.

- ☑ Small Business Administration, $100 million: These funds will support $400 million in low-interest disaster loans for renters, homeowners, and businesses in designated disaster areas.

- ☑ Department of the Treasury, $48.4 million: These funds will support the immediate response and recovery needs of the approximately 1,000 Treasury employees who were located in or near the World Trade Center complex, most of whose offices were destroyed.

RESPONDING TO THE SEPTEMBER 11 TERRORIST ATTACKS

The President and members of Congress from both parties are implementing a $40 billion emergency response package to help deal with the tragic events of September 11. This funding will ensure that the U.S. has the resources to respond to and recover from the attacks and to protect national security.

Billions of dollars have already been released to assist in New York and the other impacted areas – and more funding is on the way. Examples of the important activities being funded in New York and the other areas include:

- ☑ Federal Emergency Management Agency, $2 billion: These funds will support overall emergency assistance in New York and other affected jurisdictions. This includes costs associated with debris removal and emergency protective measures, as well as individual and family assistance, search and rescue, and other disaster assistance efforts.

- ☑ Department of Health and Human Services, $126.2 million: These funds will provide assistance for the health-related needs of the disaster-affected areas of the New York metropolitan area, Virginia, Maryland, and the District of Columbia.

- ☑ Small Business Administration, $100 million: These funds will support $400 million in low-interest disaster loans for renters, homeowners, and businesses in designated disaster areas.

- ☑ Department of the Treasury, $48.4 million: These funds will support the immediate response and recovery needs of the approximately 1,000 Treasury employees who were located in or near the World Trade Center complex, most of whose offices were destroyed.

- ☑ Department of Labor, $29 million: These amounts will provide funding for: the Department of Labor's Dislocated Workers program to provide temporary jobs to assist in clean-up and restoration efforts in New York; assistance to cover immediate information technology and other costs of disaster recovery for unemployment insurance claims processing that need to be relocated; and the Occupational Safety and Health Administration's monitoring of health and safety at the disaster sites.

- ☑ Department of the Interior, $3.1 million: These amounts will provide funding for National Park Service and U.S. Park Police emergency response costs in New York City and Washington, DC, as well as increased security patrols in both cities.

- ☑ Commodity Futures Trading Commission, $200,000: The Commodity Futures Trading Commission's New York office, which was located in the World Trade Center, will use these funds to purchase computers and office equipment for its temporary space.

OTHER EXAMPLES OF FEDERAL RESPONSE ACTIVITIES

- Federal Emergency Management Agency: The President has authorized FEMA to provide an unprecedented level of assistance. For example, the President has authorized FEMA to pay for 100 percent of public assistance activities in New York and at the Pentagon (typically, states pay 25 percent of these costs). This marks the first time FEMA will cover the entire share of public assistance expenses. Examples of public assistance activities include debris removal and repair and restoration of public facilities. In addition:

FOR MORE INFORMATION ABOUT THE PRESIDENT'S INITIATIVES PLEASE VISIT WWW.WHITEHOUSE.GOV

- FEMA has assigned 11 Federal agencies to respond to the attack. Among the Federal agencies tasked to respond were the Department of Defense, Army Corps of Engineers, USDA Forest Service, Public Health Service, and EPA.
- FEMA has called up 10 FEMA Urban Search and Rescue task forces from around the Nation to assist in the efforts in New York and Virginia. Urban Search and Rescue task forces are teams of local emergency responders that have specialized FEMA training and equipment for rescuing people in the wake of disasters such as earthquakes and terrorist events.
- Examples of additional FEMA action:
  - ✓ The agency has also been working with local governments on the debris removal efforts.
  - ✓ There are currently 3,571 Federal personnel, including 1,596 from FEMA, working in response to these incidents.
  - ✓ Through September 27, FEMA had obligated $240.5 million in New York and Virginia.
  - ✓ FEMA has established Disaster Field Offices in New York City and Virginia where disaster victims may seeks assistance. FEMA also is operating a toll-free hotline for information and registering disaster victims.
  - ✓ Through September 27, 115,756 tons of debris had been removed from the WTC site. The estimate for total debris at the WTC is 1.2 million tons.
  - ✓ FEMA is helping city, state, and volunteer organizations organize a long-term strategy for using the millions of dollars in donated funds.
  - ✓ Working with the American Red Cross and other volunteer and Federal agencies, FEMA has been providing humanitarian and financial assistance to disaster victims.

➢ Department of Education:

- Provided $5 million for Rehabilitation Services Administration to help individuals who suffered disabling physical or mental trauma as a result of the WTC attacks, as well as funds to help previously disabled Americans who lost jobs, rehabilitation or other support structures as a result of the attack.
- Provided $4 million to New York City schools and $1.7 million to New York state schools for Project SERV grants that support counseling and mental health services for affected children.
- Department of Education also established a loan forgiveness program to help those who live or work in NY City by providing temporary relief from student loan payments.

➢ Department of Labor. Labor is working to ensure the safety of the World Trade Center site for rescue personnel and is providing financial assistance to dislocated workers.

- Labor has also released $25 million of dislocated worker assistance to the State of New York to create temporary jobs to help with cleanup efforts.
- About 180 Occupational Safety & Health Administration (OSHA) staff have been deployed to provide around-the-clock safety and health assistance.

➢ Department of Justice

- The President signed into law legislation that will speed payment of $152,000 in compensation to the family of each fallen police officer, firefighter and rescuer through the Public Safety Officers' Benefits program.
- The President also signed into law a victims compensation benefit program for expeditious payment of compensation to victims or their relatives for losses suffered as a result of the terrorist attacks. The program establishes a special claim process in the Department of Justice.

➢ Health and Human Services (HHS). More than 570 (HHS) personnel are deployed in the New York City area to augment medical personnel assisting victims and recovery workers.

- HHS mental health services personnel and U.S. Public Health Service reservists are providing services to Federal responders and the public.
- The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) has deployed personnel to assist the New York City Health Department in patient care and follow-up needs.
- HHS has also made available about 100 doctors, nurses and other health care professionals to staff two treatment stations to provide round-the-clock medical care to rescue and recovery workers toiling in the aftermath of the attack in New York City.

➢ Small Business Administration (SBA). Along with FEMA and other Federal agencies, SBA's Disaster Loan Program has set up Disaster Field Offices in New York and Virginia where disaster victims may come for assistance.

- SBA has sent out 5,677 applications for low-interest disaster loans. SBA has directly assisted 4,598 individuals and businesses with loan applications and other inquiries.
- SBA has already approved disaster loans totaling $6,052,900.
- SBA is also conducting information workshops at different locations around New York to reach as many disaster victims as possible.

➢ Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). EPA is monitoring the disaster sites to ensure that rescue workers and the public are not facing dangerous environmental risks.

- Over 200 EPA personnel have participated in the response to the terrorist attacks in New York, Pennsylvania and Virginia.
- EPA has been responsible for cleaning and washing down of all workers, equipment, and resources employed during the rescue stage.
- The Agency is sampling air, water, and asbestos as well as conducting radiological and dust monitoring.
- EPA is also vacuuming and cleaning sidewalks, streets, and buildings in the World Trade Center area.

➢ Army Corps of Engineers (Corps). Corps structural engineering teams have been surveying buildings and structures in New York City so the city can assure the safety of search, rescue and debris-removal operations in and around the affected areas. The Corps is also developing a debris operations plan for the New York City. In addition, the Corps is considering potential improvements to a harbor facility for removing debris by barge.

➢ Internal Revenue Service: The IRS and Treasury have extended deadlines for all taxpayers affected by the tragedy.

- IRS released new information to help the public use charitable organizations and has sped up the processing of requests for tax-exempt status from new charities formed to assist victims of the September 11 attacks.
- IRS created a special e-mail address for businesses to send their questions to the IRS and get answers about extensions and other relief stemming from the disasters.
- IRS issued a release reminding taxpayers who suffered property losses because of the September 11 terrorist attacks that they may get a quick tax refund by claiming these losses on an amended return for 2000.

RESPONDING TO THE SEPTEMBER 11 TERRORIST ATTACKS

The President and members of Congress from both parties are implementing a $40 billion emergency response package to help deal with the tragic events of September 11. This funding will ensure that the U.S. has the resources to respond to and recover from the attacks and to protect national security.

Billions of dollars have already been released to assist in New York and the other impacted areas – and more funding is on the way. Examples of the important activities being funded in New York and the other areas include:

- ☑ Federal Emergency Management Agency, $2 billion: These funds will support overall emergency assistance in New York and other affected jurisdictions. This includes costs associated with debris removal and emergency protective measures, as well as individual and family assistance, search and rescue, and other disaster assistance efforts.

- ☑ Department of Health and Human Services, $126.2 million: These funds will provide assistance for the health-related needs of the disaster-affected areas of the New York metropolitan area, Virginia, Maryland, and the District of Columbia.

- ☑ Small Business Administration, $100 million: These funds will support $400 million in low-interest disaster loans for renters, homeowners, and businesses in designated disaster areas.

- ☑ Department of the Treasury, $48.4 million: These funds will support the immediate response and recovery needs of the approximately 1,000 Treasury employees who were located in or near the World Trade Center complex, most of whose offices were destroyed.

- ☑ Department of Labor, $29 million: These amounts will provide funding for: the Department of Labor's Dislocated Workers program to provide temporary jobs to assist in clean-up and restoration efforts in New York; assistance to cover immediate information technology and other costs of disaster recovery for unemployment insurance claims processing that need to be relocated; and the Occupational Safety and Health Administration's monitoring of health and safety at the disaster sites.

- ☑ Department of the Interior, $3.1 million: These amounts will provide funding for National Park Service and U.S. Park Police emergency response costs in New York City and Washington, DC, as well as increased security patrols in both cities.

- ☑ Commodity Futures Trading Commission, $200,000: The Commodity Futures Trading Commission's New York office, which was located in the World Trade Center, will use these funds to purchase computers and office equipment for its temporary space.

OTHER EXAMPLES OF FEDERAL RESPONSE ACTIVITIES

- Federal Emergency Management Agency: The President has authorized FEMA to provide an unprecedented level of assistance. For example, the President has authorized FEMA to pay for 100 percent of public assistance activities in New York and at the Pentagon (typically, states pay 25 percent of these costs). This marks the first time FEMA will cover the entire share of public assistance expenses. Examples of public assistance activities include debris removal and repair and restoration of public facilities. In addition:

FOR MORE INFORMATION ABOUT THE PRESIDENT'S INITIATIVES PLEASE VISIT WWW.WHITEHOUSE.GOV

- FEMA has assigned 11 Federal agencies to respond to the attack. Among the Federal agencies tasked to respond were the Department of Defense, Army Corps of Engineers, USDA Forest Service, Public Health Service, and EPA.
- FEMA has called up 10 FEMA Urban Search and Rescue task forces from around the Nation to assist in the efforts in New York and Virginia. Urban Search and Rescue task forces are teams of local emergency responders that have specialized FEMA training and equipment for rescuing people in the wake of disasters such as earthquakes and terrorist events.
- Examples of additional FEMA action:
  - ✓ The agency has also been working with local governments on the debris removal efforts.
  - ✓ There are currently 3,571 Federal personnel, including 1,596 from FEMA, working in response to these incidents.
  - ✓ Through September 27, FEMA had obligated $240.5 million in New York and Virginia.
  - ✓ FEMA has established Disaster Field Offices in New York City and Virginia where disaster victims may seeks assistance. FEMA also is operating a toll-free hotline for information and registering disaster victims.
  - ✓ Through September 27, 115,756 tons of debris had been removed from the WTC site. The estimate for total debris at the WTC is 1.2 million tons.
  - ✓ FEMA is helping city, state, and volunteer organizations organize a long-term strategy for using the millions of dollars in donated funds.
  - ✓ Working with the American Red Cross and other volunteer and Federal agencies, FEMA has been providing humanitarian and financial assistance to disaster victims.

➢ Department of Education:

- Provided $5 million for Rehabilitation Services Administration to help individuals who suffered disabling physical or mental trauma as a result of the WTC attacks, as well as funds to help previously disabled Americans who lost jobs, rehabilitation or other support structures as a result of the attack.
- Provided $4 million to New York City schools and $1.7 million to New York state schools for Project SERV grants that support counseling and mental health services for affected children.
- Department of Education also established a loan forgiveness program to help those who live or work in NY City by providing temporary relief from student loan payments.

➢ Department of Labor. Labor is working to ensure the safety of the World Trade Center site for rescue personnel and is providing financial assistance to dislocated workers.

- Labor has also released $25 million of dislocated worker assistance to the State of New York to create temporary jobs to help with cleanup efforts.
- About 180 Occupational Safety & Health Administration (OSHA) staff have been deployed to provide around-the-clock safety and health assistance.

➢ Department of Justice

- The President signed into law legislation that will speed payment of $152,000 in compensation to the family of each fallen police officer, firefighter and rescuer through the Public Safety Officers' Benefits program.
- The President also signed into law a victims compensation benefit program for expeditious payment of compensation to victims or their relatives for losses suffered as a result of the terrorist attacks. The program establishes a special claim process in the Department of Justice.

➢ Health and Human Services (HHS). More than 570 (HHS) personnel are deployed in the New York City area to augment medical personnel assisting victims and recovery workers.

- HHS mental health services personnel and U.S. Public Health Service reservists are providing services to Federal responders and the public.
- The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) has deployed personnel to assist the New York City Health Department in patient care and follow-up needs.
- HHS has also made available about 100 doctors, nurses and other health care professionals to staff two treatment stations to provide round-the-clock medical care to rescue and recovery workers toiling in the aftermath of the attack in New York City.

➢ Small Business Administration (SBA). Along with FEMA and other Federal agencies, SBA's Disaster Loan Program has set up Disaster Field Offices in New York and Virginia where disaster victims may come for assistance.

- SBA has sent out 5,677 applications for low-interest disaster loans. SBA has directly assisted 4,598 individuals and businesses with loan applications and other inquiries.
- SBA has already approved disaster loans totaling $6,052,900.
- SBA is also conducting information workshops at different locations around New York to reach as many disaster victims as possible.

➢ Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). EPA is monitoring the disaster sites to ensure that rescue workers and the public are not facing dangerous environmental risks.

- Over 200 EPA personnel have participated in the response to the terrorist attacks in New York, Pennsylvania and Virginia.
- EPA has been responsible for cleaning and washing down of all workers, equipment, and resources employed during the rescue stage.
- The Agency is sampling air, water, and asbestos as well as conducting radiological and dust monitoring.
- EPA is also vacuuming and cleaning sidewalks, streets, and buildings in the World Trade Center area.

➢ Army Corps of Engineers (Corps). Corps structural engineering teams have been surveying buildings and structures in New York City so the city can assure the safety of search, rescue and debris-removal operations in and around the affected areas. The Corps is also developing a debris operations plan for the New York City. In addition, the Corps is considering potential improvements to a harbor facility for removing debris by barge.

➢ Internal Revenue Service: The IRS and Treasury have extended deadlines for all taxpayers affected by the tragedy.

- IRS released new information to help the public use charitable organizations and has sped up the processing of requests for tax-exempt status from new charities formed to assist victims of the September 11 attacks.
- IRS created a special e-mail address for businesses to send their questions to the IRS and get answers about extensions and other relief stemming from the disasters.
- IRS issued a release reminding taxpayers who suffered property losses because of the September 11 terrorist attacks that they may get a quick tax refund by claiming these losses on an amended return for 2000.

RESPONDING TO THE SEPTEMBER 11 TERRORIST ATTACKS

The President and members of Congress from both parties are implementing a $40 billion emergency response package to help deal with the tragic events of September 11. This funding will ensure that the U.S. has the resources to respond to and recover from the attacks and to protect national security.

Billions of dollars have already been released to assist in New York and the other impacted areas – and more funding is on the way. Examples of the important activities being funded in New York and the other areas include:

- ☑ Federal Emergency Management Agency, $2 billion: These funds will support overall emergency assistance in New York and other affected jurisdictions. This includes costs associated with debris removal and emergency protective measures, as well as individual and family assistance, search and rescue, and other disaster assistance efforts.

- ☑ Department of Health and Human Services, $126.2 million: These funds will provide assistance for the health-related needs of the disaster-affected areas of the New York metropolitan area, Virginia, Maryland, and the District of Columbia.

- ☑ Small Business Administration, $100 million: These funds will support $400 million in low-interest disaster loans for renters, homeowners, and businesses in designated disaster areas.

- ☑ Department of the Treasury, $48.4 million: These funds will support the immediate response and recovery needs of the approximately 1,000 Treasury employees who were located in or near the World Trade Center complex, most of whose offices were destroyed.

- ☑ Department of Labor, $29 million: These amounts will provide funding for: the Department of Labor's Dislocated Workers program to provide temporary jobs to assist in clean-up and restoration efforts in New York; assistance to cover immediate information technology and other costs of disaster recovery for unemployment insurance claims processing that need to be relocated; and the Occupational Safety and Health Administration's monitoring of health and safety at the disaster sites.

- ☑ Department of the Interior, $3.1 million: These amounts will provide funding for National Park Service and U.S. Park Police emergency response costs in New York City and Washington, DC, as well as increased security patrols in both cities.

- ☑ Commodity Futures Trading Commission, $200,000: The Commodity Futures Trading Commission's New York office, which was located in the World Trade Center, will use these funds to purchase computers and office equipment for its temporary space.

OTHER EXAMPLES OF FEDERAL RESPONSE ACTIVITIES

- Federal Emergency Management Agency: The President has authorized FEMA to provide an unprecedented level of assistance. For example, the President has authorized FEMA to pay for 100 percent of public assistance activities in New York and at the Pentagon (typically, states pay 25 percent of these costs). This marks the first time FEMA will cover the entire share of public assistance expenses. Examples of public assistance activities include debris removal and repair and restoration of public facilities. In addition:

FOR MORE INFORMATION ABOUT THE PRESIDENT'S INITIATIVES PLEASE VISIT WWW.WHITEHOUSE.GOV

- FEMA has assigned 11 Federal agencies to respond to the attack. Among the Federal agencies tasked to respond were the Department of Defense, Army Corps of Engineers, USDA Forest Service, Public Health Service, and EPA.
- FEMA has called up 10 FEMA Urban Search and Rescue task forces from around the Nation to assist in the efforts in New York and Virginia. Urban Search and Rescue task forces are teams of local emergency responders that have specialized FEMA training and equipment for rescuing people in the wake of disasters such as earthquakes and terrorist events.
- Examples of additional FEMA action:
  - ✓ The agency has also been working with local governments on the debris removal efforts.
  - ✓ There are currently 3,571 Federal personnel, including 1,596 from FEMA, working in response to these incidents.
  - ✓ Through September 27, FEMA had obligated $240.5 million in New York and Virginia.
  - ✓ FEMA has established Disaster Field Offices in New York City and Virginia where disaster victims may seeks assistance. FEMA also is operating a toll-free hotline for information and registering disaster victims.
  - ✓ Through September 27, 115,756 tons of debris had been removed from the WTC site. The estimate for total debris at the WTC is 1.2 million tons.
  - ✓ FEMA is helping city, state, and volunteer organizations organize a long-term strategy for using the millions of dollars in donated funds.
  - ✓ Working with the American Red Cross and other volunteer and Federal agencies, FEMA has been providing humanitarian and financial assistance to disaster victims.

➢ Department of Education:

- Provided $5 million for Rehabilitation Services Administration to help individuals who suffered disabling physical or mental trauma as a result of the WTC attacks, as well as funds to help previously disabled Americans who lost jobs, rehabilitation or other support structures as a result of the attack.
- Provided $4 million to New York City schools and $1.7 million to New York state schools for Project SERV grants that support counseling and mental health services for affected children.
- Department of Education also established a loan forgiveness program to help those who live or work in NY City by providing temporary relief from student loan payments.

➢ Department of Labor. Labor is working to ensure the safety of the World Trade Center site for rescue personnel and is providing financial assistance to dislocated workers.

- Labor has also released $25 million of dislocated worker assistance to the State of New York to create temporary jobs to help with cleanup efforts.
- About 180 Occupational Safety & Health Administration (OSHA) staff have been deployed to provide around-the-clock safety and health assistance.

➢ Department of Justice

- The President signed into law legislation that will speed payment of $152,000 in compensation to the family of each fallen police officer, firefighter and rescuer through the Public Safety Officers' Benefits program.
- The President also signed into law a victims compensation benefit program for expeditious payment of compensation to victims or their relatives for losses suffered as a result of the terrorist attacks. The program establishes a special claim process in the Department of Justice.

➢ Health and Human Services (HHS). More than 570 (HHS) personnel are deployed in the New York City area to augment medical personnel assisting victims and recovery workers.

- HHS mental health services personnel and U.S. Public Health Service reservists are providing services to Federal responders and the public.
- The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) has deployed personnel to assist the New York City Health Department in patient care and follow-up needs.
- HHS has also made available about 100 doctors, nurses and other health care professionals to staff two treatment stations to provide round-the-clock medical care to rescue and recovery workers toiling in the aftermath of the attack in New York City.

➢ Small Business Administration (SBA). Along with FEMA and other Federal agencies, SBA's Disaster Loan Program has set up Disaster Field Offices in New York and Virginia where disaster victims may come for assistance.

- SBA has sent out 5,677 applications for low-interest disaster loans. SBA has directly assisted 4,598 individuals and businesses with loan applications and other inquiries.
- SBA has already approved disaster loans totaling $6,052,900.
- SBA is also conducting information workshops at different locations around New York to reach as many disaster victims as possible.

➢ Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). EPA is monitoring the disaster sites to ensure that rescue workers and the public are not facing dangerous environmental risks.

- Over 200 EPA personnel have participated in the response to the terrorist attacks in New York, Pennsylvania and Virginia.
- EPA has been responsible for cleaning and washing down of all workers, equipment, and resources employed during the rescue stage.
- The Agency is sampling air, water, and asbestos as well as conducting radiological and dust monitoring.
- EPA is also vacuuming and cleaning sidewalks, streets, and buildings in the World Trade Center area.

➢ Army Corps of Engineers (Corps). Corps structural engineering teams have been surveying buildings and structures in New York City so the city can assure the safety of search, rescue and debris-removal operations in and around the affected areas. The Corps is also developing a debris operations plan for the New York City. In addition, the Corps is considering potential improvements to a harbor facility for removing debris by barge.

➢ Internal Revenue Service: The IRS and Treasury have extended deadlines for all taxpayers affected by the tragedy.

- IRS released new information to help the public use charitable organizations and has sped up the processing of requests for tax-exempt status from new charities formed to assist victims of the September 11 attacks.
- IRS created a special e-mail address for businesses to send their questions to the IRS and get answers about extensions and other relief stemming from the disasters.
- IRS issued a release reminding taxpayers who suffered property losses because of the September 11 terrorist attacks that they may get a quick tax refund by claiming these losses on an amended return for 2000.

RESPONDING TO THE SEPTEMBER 11 TERRORIST ATTACKS

The President and members of Congress from both parties are implementing a $40 billion emergency response package to help deal with the tragic events of September 11. This funding will ensure that the U.S. has the resources to respond to and recover from the attacks and to protect national security.

Billions of dollars have already been released to assist in New York and the other impacted areas – and more funding is on the way. Examples of the important activities being funded in New York and the other areas include:

- ☑ Federal Emergency Management Agency, $2 billion: These funds will support overall emergency assistance in New York and other affected jurisdictions. This includes costs associated with debris removal and emergency protective measures, as well as individual and family assistance, search and rescue, and other disaster assistance efforts.

- ☑ Department of Health and Human Services, $126.2 million: These funds will provide assistance for the health-related needs of the disaster-affected areas of the New York metropolitan area, Virginia, Maryland, and the District of Columbia.

- ☑ Small Business Administration, $100 million: These funds will support $400 million in low-interest disaster loans for renters, homeowners, and businesses in designated disaster areas.

- ☑ Department of the Treasury, $48.4 million: These funds will support the immediate response and recovery needs of the approximately 1,000 Treasury employees who were located in or near the World Trade Center complex, most of whose offices were destroyed.

- ☑ Department of Labor, $29 million: These amounts will provide funding for: the Department of Labor's Dislocated Workers program to provide temporary jobs to assist in clean-up and restoration efforts in New York; assistance to cover immediate information technology and other costs of disaster recovery for unemployment insurance claims processing that need to be relocated; and the Occupational Safety and Health Administration's monitoring of health and safety at the disaster sites.

- ☑ Department of the Interior, $3.1 million: These amounts will provide funding for National Park Service and U.S. Park Police emergency response costs in New York City and Washington, DC, as well as increased security patrols in both cities.

- ☑ Commodity Futures Trading Commission, $200,000: The Commodity Futures Trading Commission's New York office, which was located in the World Trade Center, will use these funds to purchase computers and office equipment for its temporary space.

OTHER EXAMPLES OF FEDERAL RESPONSE ACTIVITIES

- Federal Emergency Management Agency: The President has authorized FEMA to provide an unprecedented level of assistance. For example, the President has authorized FEMA to pay for 100 percent of public assistance activities in New York and at the Pentagon (typically, states pay 25 percent of these costs). This marks the first time FEMA will cover the entire share of public assistance expenses. Examples of public assistance activities include debris removal and repair and restoration of public facilities. In addition:

FOR MORE INFORMATION ABOUT THE PRESIDENT'S INITIATIVES PLEASE VISIT WWW.WHITEHOUSE.GOV

- FEMA has assigned 11 Federal agencies to respond to the attack. Among the Federal agencies tasked to respond were the Department of Defense, Army Corps of Engineers, USDA Forest Service, Public Health Service, and EPA.
- FEMA has called up 10 FEMA Urban Search and Rescue task forces from around the Nation to assist in the efforts in New York and Virginia. Urban Search and Rescue task forces are teams of local emergency responders that have specialized FEMA training and equipment for rescuing people in the wake of disasters such as earthquakes and terrorist events.
- Examples of additional FEMA action:
  - ✓ The agency has also been working with local governments on the debris removal efforts.
  - ✓ There are currently 3,571 Federal personnel, including 1,596 from FEMA, working in response to these incidents.
  - ✓ Through September 27, FEMA had obligated $240.5 million in New York and Virginia.
  - ✓ FEMA has established Disaster Field Offices in New York City and Virginia where disaster victims may seeks assistance. FEMA also is operating a toll-free hotline for information and registering disaster victims.
  - ✓ Through September 27, 115,756 tons of debris had been removed from the WTC site. The estimate for total debris at the WTC is 1.2 million tons.
  - ✓ FEMA is helping city, state, and volunteer organizations organize a long-term strategy for using the millions of dollars in donated funds.
  - ✓ Working with the American Red Cross and other volunteer and Federal agencies, FEMA has been providing humanitarian and financial assistance to disaster victims.

➢ Department of Education:

- Provided $5 million for Rehabilitation Services Administration to help individuals who suffered disabling physical or mental trauma as a result of the WTC attacks, as well as funds to help previously disabled Americans who lost jobs, rehabilitation or other support structures as a result of the attack.
- Provided $4 million to New York City schools and $1.7 million to New York state schools for Project SERV grants that support counseling and mental health services for affected children.
- Department of Education also established a loan forgiveness program to help those who live or work in NY City by providing temporary relief from student loan payments.

➢ Department of Labor. Labor is working to ensure the safety of the World Trade Center site for rescue personnel and is providing financial assistance to dislocated workers.

- Labor has also released $25 million of dislocated worker assistance to the State of New York to create temporary jobs to help with cleanup efforts.
- About 180 Occupational Safety & Health Administration (OSHA) staff have been deployed to provide around-the-clock safety and health assistance.

➢ Department of Justice

- The President signed into law legislation that will speed payment of $152,000 in compensation to the family of each fallen police officer, firefighter and rescuer through the Public Safety Officers' Benefits program.
- The President also signed into law a victims compensation benefit program for expeditious payment of compensation to victims or their relatives for losses suffered as a result of the terrorist attacks. The program establishes a special claim process in the Department of Justice.

➢ Health and Human Services (HHS). More than 570 (HHS) personnel are deployed in the New York City area to augment medical personnel assisting victims and recovery workers.

- HHS mental health services personnel and U.S. Public Health Service reservists are providing services to Federal responders and the public.
- The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) has deployed personnel to assist the New York City Health Department in patient care and follow-up needs.
- HHS has also made available about 100 doctors, nurses and other health care professionals to staff two treatment stations to provide round-the-clock medical care to rescue and recovery workers toiling in the aftermath of the attack in New York City.

➢ Small Business Administration (SBA). Along with FEMA and other Federal agencies, SBA's Disaster Loan Program has set up Disaster Field Offices in New York and Virginia where disaster victims may come for assistance.

- SBA has sent out 5,677 applications for low-interest disaster loans. SBA has directly assisted 4,598 individuals and businesses with loan applications and other inquiries.
- SBA has already approved disaster loans totaling $6,052,900.
- SBA is also conducting information workshops at different locations around New York to reach as many disaster victims as possible.

➢ Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). EPA is monitoring the disaster sites to ensure that rescue workers and the public are not facing dangerous environmental risks.

- Over 200 EPA personnel have participated in the response to the terrorist attacks in New York, Pennsylvania and Virginia.
- EPA has been responsible for cleaning and washing down of all workers, equipment, and resources employed during the rescue stage.
- The Agency is sampling air, water, and asbestos as well as conducting radiological and dust monitoring.
- EPA is also vacuuming and cleaning sidewalks, streets, and buildings in the World Trade Center area.

➢ Army Corps of Engineers (Corps). Corps structural engineering teams have been surveying buildings and structures in New York City so the city can assure the safety of search, rescue and debris-removal operations in and around the affected areas. The Corps is also developing a debris operations plan for the New York City. In addition, the Corps is considering potential improvements to a harbor facility for removing debris by barge.

➢ Internal Revenue Service: The IRS and Treasury have extended deadlines for all taxpayers affected by the tragedy.

- IRS released new information to help the public use charitable organizations and has sped up the processing of requests for tax-exempt status from new charities formed to assist victims of the September 11 attacks.
- IRS created a special e-mail address for businesses to send their questions to the IRS and get answers about extensions and other relief stemming from the disasters.
- IRS issued a release reminding taxpayers who suffered property losses because of the September 11 terrorist attacks that they may get a quick tax refund by claiming these losses on an amended return for 2000.

RESPONDING TO THE SEPTEMBER 11 TERRORIST ATTACKS

The President and members of Congress from both parties are implementing a $40 billion emergency response package to help deal with the tragic events of September 11. This funding will ensure that the U.S. has the resources to respond to and recover from the attacks and to protect national security.

Billions of dollars have already been released to assist in New York and the other impacted areas – and more funding is on the way. Examples of the important activities being funded in New York and the other areas include:

- ☑ Federal Emergency Management Agency, $2 billion: These funds will support overall emergency assistance in New York and other affected jurisdictions. This includes costs associated with debris removal and emergency protective measures, as well as individual and family assistance, search and rescue, and other disaster assistance efforts.

- ☑ Department of Health and Human Services, $126.2 million: These funds will provide assistance for the health-related needs of the disaster-affected areas of the New York metropolitan area, Virginia, Maryland, and the District of Columbia.

- ☑ Small Business Administration, $100 million: These funds will support $400 million in low-interest disaster loans for renters, homeowners, and businesses in designated disaster areas.

- ☑ Department of the Treasury, $48.4 million: These funds will support the immediate response and recovery needs of the approximately 1,000 Treasury employees who were located in or near the World Trade Center complex, most of whose offices were destroyed.

- ☑ Department of Labor, $29 million: These amounts will provide funding for: the Department of Labor's Dislocated Workers program to provide temporary jobs to assist in clean-up and restoration efforts in New York; assistance to cover immediate information technology and other costs of disaster recovery for unemployment insurance claims processing that need to be relocated; and the Occupational Safety and Health Administration's monitoring of health and safety at the disaster sites.

RESPONDING TO THE SEPTEMBER 11 TERRORIST ATTACKS

The President and members of Congress from both parties are implementing a $40 billion emergency response package to help deal with the tragic events of September 11. This funding will ensure that the U.S. has the resources to respond to and recover from the attacks and to protect national security.

Billions of dollars have already been released to assist in New York and the other impacted areas – and more funding is on the way. Examples of the important activities being funded in New York and the other areas include:

- ☑ Federal Emergency Management Agency, $2 billion: These funds will support overall emergency assistance in New York and other affected jurisdictions. This includes costs associated with debris removal and emergency protective measures, as well as individual and family assistance, search and rescue, and other disaster assistance efforts.

- ☑ Department of Health and Human Services, $126.2 million: These funds will provide assistance for the health-related needs of the disaster-affected areas of the New York metropolitan area, Virginia, Maryland, and the District of Columbia.

- ☑ Small Business Administration, $100 million: These funds will support $400 million in low-interest disaster loans for renters, homeowners, and businesses in designated disaster areas.

- ☑ Department of the Treasury, $48.4 million: These funds will support the immediate response and recovery needs of the approximately 1,000 Treasury employees who were located in or near the World Trade Center complex, most of whose offices were destroyed.

- ☑ Department of Labor, $29 million: These amounts will provide funding for: the Department of Labor's Dislocated Workers program to provide temporary jobs to assist in clean-up and restoration efforts in New York; assistance to cover immediate information technology and other costs of disaster recovery for unemployment insurance claims processing that need to be relocated; and the Occupational Safety and Health Administration's monitoring of health and safety at the disaster sites.

- ☑ Department of the Interior, $3.1 million: These amounts will provide funding for National Park Service and U.S. Park Police emergency response costs in New York City and Washington, DC, as well as increased security patrols in both cities.

- ☑ Commodity Futures Trading Commission, $200,000: The Commodity Futures Trading Commission's New York office, which was located in the World Trade Center, will use these funds to purchase computers and office equipment for its temporary space.

OTHER EXAMPLES OF FEDERAL RESPONSE ACTIVITIES

- Federal Emergency Management Agency: The President has authorized FEMA to provide an unprecedented level of assistance. For example, the President has authorized FEMA to pay for 100 percent of public assistance activities in New York and at the Pentagon (typically, states pay 25 percent of these costs). This marks the first time FEMA will cover the entire share of public assistance expenses. Examples of public assistance activities include debris removal and repair and restoration of public facilities. In addition:

FOR MORE INFORMATION ABOUT THE PRESIDENT'S INITIATIVES PLEASE VISIT WWW.WHITEHOUSE.GOV

- FEMA has assigned 11 Federal agencies to respond to the attack. Among the Federal agencies tasked to respond were the Department of Defense, Army Corps of Engineers, USDA Forest Service, Public Health Service, and EPA.
- FEMA has called up 10 FEMA Urban Search and Rescue task forces from around the Nation to assist in the efforts in New York and Virginia. Urban Search and Rescue task forces are teams of local emergency responders that have specialized FEMA training and equipment for rescuing people in the wake of disasters such as earthquakes and terrorist events.
- Examples of additional FEMA action:
  - ✓ The agency has also been working with local governments on the debris removal efforts.
  - ✓ There are currently 3,571 Federal personnel, including 1,596 from FEMA, working in response to these incidents.
  - ✓ Through September 27, FEMA had obligated $240.5 million in New York and Virginia.
  - ✓ FEMA has established Disaster Field Offices in New York City and Virginia where disaster victims may seeks assistance. FEMA also is operating a toll-free hotline for information and registering disaster victims.
  - ✓ Through September 27, 115,756 tons of debris had been removed from the WTC site. The estimate for total debris at the WTC is 1.2 million tons.
  - ✓ FEMA is helping city, state, and volunteer organizations organize a long-term strategy for using the millions of dollars in donated funds.
  - ✓ Working with the American Red Cross and other volunteer and Federal agencies, FEMA has been providing humanitarian and financial assistance to disaster victims.

➢ Department of Education:

- Provided $5 million for Rehabilitation Services Administration to help individuals who suffered disabling physical or mental trauma as a result of the WTC attacks, as well as funds to help previously disabled Americans who lost jobs, rehabilitation or other support structures as a result of the attack.
- Provided $4 million to New York City schools and $1.7 million to New York state schools for Project SERV grants that support counseling and mental health services for affected children.
- Department of Education also established a loan forgiveness program to help those who live or work in NY City by providing temporary relief from student loan payments.

➢ Department of Labor. Labor is working to ensure the safety of the World Trade Center site for rescue personnel and is providing financial assistance to dislocated workers.

- Labor has also released $25 million of dislocated worker assistance to the State of New York to create temporary jobs to help with cleanup efforts.
- About 180 Occupational Safety & Health Administration (OSHA) staff have been deployed to provide around-the-clock safety and health assistance.

➢ Department of Justice

- The President signed into law legislation that will speed payment of $152,000 in compensation to the family of each fallen police officer, firefighter and rescuer through the Public Safety Officers' Benefits program.
- The President also signed into law a victims compensation benefit program for expeditious payment of compensation to victims or their relatives for losses suffered as a result of the terrorist attacks. The program establishes a special claim process in the Department of Justice.

➢ Health and Human Services (HHS). More than 570 (HHS) personnel are deployed in the New York City area to augment medical personnel assisting victims and recovery workers.

- HHS mental health services personnel and U.S. Public Health Service reservists are providing services to Federal responders and the public.
- The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) has deployed personnel to assist the New York City Health Department in patient care and follow-up needs.
- HHS has also made available about 100 doctors, nurses and other health care professionals to staff two treatment stations to provide round-the-clock medical care to rescue and recovery workers toiling in the aftermath of the attack in New York City.

➢ Small Business Administration (SBA). Along with FEMA and other Federal agencies, SBA's Disaster Loan Program has set up Disaster Field Offices in New York and Virginia where disaster victims may come for assistance.

- SBA has sent out 5,677 applications for low-interest disaster loans. SBA has directly assisted 4,598 individuals and businesses with loan applications and other inquiries.
- SBA has already approved disaster loans totaling $6,052,900.
- SBA is also conducting information workshops at different locations around New York to reach as many disaster victims as possible.

➢ Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). EPA is monitoring the disaster sites to ensure that rescue workers and the public are not facing dangerous environmental risks.

- Over 200 EPA personnel have participated in the response to the terrorist attacks in New York, Pennsylvania and Virginia.
- EPA has been responsible for cleaning and washing down of all workers, equipment, and resources employed during the rescue stage.
- The Agency is sampling air, water, and asbestos as well as conducting radiological and dust monitoring.
- EPA is also vacuuming and cleaning sidewalks, streets, and buildings in the World Trade Center area.

➢ Army Corps of Engineers (Corps). Corps structural engineering teams have been surveying buildings and structures in New York City so the city can assure the safety of search, rescue and debris-removal operations in and around the affected areas. The Corps is also developing a debris operations plan for the New York City. In addition, the Corps is considering potential improvements to a harbor facility for removing debris by barge.

➢ Internal Revenue Service: The IRS and Treasury have extended deadlines for all taxpayers affected by the tragedy.

- IRS released new information to help the public use charitable organizations and has sped up the processing of requests for tax-exempt status from new charities formed to assist victims of the September 11 attacks.
- IRS created a special e-mail address for businesses to send their questions to the IRS and get answers about extensions and other relief stemming from the disasters.
- IRS issued a release reminding taxpayers who suffered property losses because of the September 11 terrorist attacks that they may get a quick tax refund by claiming these losses on an amended return for 2000.

Subject: Anti-terrorism bill

I think the Sensenbrenner vehicle has made Members a lot more comfortable than the original proposal. In particular, Members who are nervous about some of the Title I stuff are pacified by the 2 year sunset. I have heard from numerous Republicans, on and off the Committee, that the sunset at least allows them the ability to say "in the worst case scenario, we get a chance to revisit these issues in a more measured way."

I'm very concerned, therefore, about the very strong position the Administration seems to be taking against the sunset. I've heard
assertions that ongoing terrorist cases would be thrown out of court on the grounds that the law will expire in 2 years. Most of our laws are reauthorized over several years -- I've never heard of a court declaring them irrelevant because they will expire.

I have heard, even, that there may be an effort after the Committee acts to work to strip the sunset before it comes to the floor -- and jam Members on it. This may not be the case, but in this environment the rumors are rampant. I suspect that given the sigh of relief we have heard from Members because of the sunset, there will be some strong reaction if it is summarily stripped out before they get a chance to vote on it.

I can't imagine a realistic argument against it -- it gives the Administration what it says it needs in record time, while providing an opportunity to review the impact later. If investigations are ongoing or the anti-terrorism effort is not completed, the pressure to extend the provisions will be as enormous as it is now. Combined with the general feeling among Members that they are being excluded from any kind of decision making process on a variety of issues, this would engender substantial ill will -- people feel passionately about this stuff and have spent their careers on it.

This time of crisis will pass and I am concerned that the process of cutting everyone out of the decisionmaking loop -- and undermining the Committee process -- will create an atmosphere of distrust and resentment that will resonate long after this crisis is over and we have to get back to regular order. Just my two cents.

If investigations are ongo ing or the anti-terrorism effort is not completed, the pressure to extend the p rovisions will be as enormous as it is now. Combined with the general fee ling among Members that they are being excluded from any kind of decision makin g process on a variety of issues, this would engender substantial ill will -- p eople feel passionately about this stuff and have spent their careers on it.

This time of crisis will pass and I am concerned t hat the process of cutting everyone out of the decisionmaking loop -- and under mining the Committee process -- will create an atmosphere of distrust and resen tment that will resonate long after this crisis is over and we have to get back to regular order. Just my two cents.

Presidential Action – Thursday, October 4

White House Office of Communications

Today the President will visit the State Department to announce new humanitarian assistance to the Afghan people who are suffering under the Taliban regime.

☑ Message: America has no compassion for terrorists or those who aid them. But we have great compassion for the millions around the world who are hungry and are themselves the victims of hate – including those in Afghanistan. Islam promotes peace, understanding and justice – exactly the opposite of what the Taliban and the terrorists they harbor advocate.

The President today will also visit the Labor Department to thank employees and talk about ways to get people back to work.

☑ Message: The terrorist attacks of September 11 had a devastating and direct impact on the American economy. We must do everything we can to jump-start our economy, and we must do everything we can to make sure people who have been laid off can find work.

The President today will meet with the Amir of Qatar and the President of Mexico as he continues to build an international coalition against terrorism.

☑ Message: Victory against terrorism will not take place in a single battle, but in a series of decisive actions against terrorist organizations and those who harbor and support them. This will be a different kind of conflict against a different kind of enemy, and it will require the strong international coalition the President is assembling.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

Presidential Action – Thursday, October 4

White House Office of Communications

Today the President will visit the State Department to announce new humanitarian assistance to the Afghan people who are suffering under the Taliban regime.

☑ Message: America has no compassion for terrorists or those who aid them. But we have great compassion for the millions around the world who are hungry and are themselves the victims of hate – including those in Afghanistan. Islam promotes peace, understanding and justice – exactly the opposite of what the Taliban and the terrorists they harbor advocate.

The President today will also visit the Labor Department to thank employees and talk about ways to get people back to work.

☑ Message: The terrorist attacks of September 11 had a devastating and direct impact on the American economy. We must do everything we can to jump-start our economy, and we must do everything we can to make sure people who have been laid off can find work.

The President today will meet with the Amir of Qatar and the President of Mexico as he continues to build an international coalition against terrorism.

☑ Message: Victory against terrorism will not take place in a single battle, but in a series of decisive actions against terrorist organizations and those who harbor and support them. This will be a different kind of conflict against a different kind of enemy, and it will require the strong international coalition the President is assembling.

Presidential Action – Thursday, October 4

White House Office of Communications

Today the President will visit the State Department to announce new humanitarian assistance to the Afghan people who are suffering under the Taliban regime.

☑ Message: America has no compassion for terrorists or those who aid them. But we have great compassion for the millions around the world who are hungry and are themselves the victims of hate – including those in Afghanistan. Islam promotes peace, understanding and justice – exactly the opposite of what the Taliban and the terrorists they harbor advocate.

The President today will also visit the Labor Department to thank employees and talk about ways to get people back to work.

☑ Message: The terrorist attacks of September 11 had a devastating and direct impact on the American economy. We must do everything we can to jump-start our economy, and we must do everything we can to make sure people who have been laid off can find work.

The President today will meet with the Amir of Qatar and the President of Mexico as he continues to build an international coalition against terrorism.

☑ Message: Victory against terrorism will not take place in a single battle, but in a series of decisive actions against terrorist organizations and those who harbor and support them. This will be a different kind of conflict against a different kind of enemy, and it will require the strong international coalition the President is assembling.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

Presidential Action – Thursday, October 4

White House Office of Communications

Today the President will visit the State Department to announce new humanitarian assistance to the Afghan people who are suffering under the Taliban regime.

☑ Message: America has no compassion for terrorists or those who aid them. But we have great compassion for the millions around the world who are hungry and are themselves the victims of hate – including those in Afghanistan. Islam promotes peace, understanding and justice – exactly the opposite of what the Taliban and the terrorists they harbor advocate.

The President today will also visit the Labor Department to thank employees and talk about ways to get people back to work.

☑ Message: The terrorist attacks of September 11 had a devastating and direct impact on the American economy. We must do everything we can to jump-start our economy, and we must do everything we can to make sure people who have been laid off can find work.

The President today will meet with the Amir of Qatar and the President of Mexico as he continues to build an international coalition against terrorism.

☑ Message: Victory against terrorism will not take place in a single battle, but in a series of decisive actions against terrorist organizations and those who harbor and support them. This will be a different kind of conflict against a different kind of enemy, and it will require the strong international coalition the President is assembling.

Presidential Action – Thursday, October 4

White House Office of Communications

Today the President will visit the State Department to announce new humanitarian assistance to the Afghan people who are suffering under the Taliban regime.

☑ Message: America has no compassion for terrorists or those who aid them. But we have great compassion for the millions around the world who are hungry and are themselves the victims of hate – including those in Afghanistan. Islam promotes peace, understanding and justice – exactly the opposite of what the Taliban and the terrorists they harbor advocate.

The President today will also visit the Labor Department to thank employees and talk about ways to get people back to work.

☑ Message: The terrorist attacks of September 11 had a devastating and direct impact on the American economy. We must do everything we can to jump-start our economy, and we must do everything we can to make sure people who have been laid off can find work.

The President today will meet with the Amir of Qatar and the President of Mexico as he continues to build an international coalition against terrorism.

☑ Message: Victory against terrorism will not take place in a single battle, but in a series of decisive actions against terrorist organizations and those who harbor and support them. This will be a different kind of conflict against a different kind of enemy, and it will require the strong international coalition the President is assembling.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

Presidential Action – Thursday, October 4

White House Office of Communications

Today the President will visit the State Department to announce new humanitarian assistance to the Afghan people who are suffering under the Taliban regime.

☑ Message: America has no compassion for terrorists or those who aid them. But we have great compassion for the millions around the world who are hungry and are themselves the victims of hate – including those in Afghanistan. Islam promotes peace, understanding and justice – exactly the opposite of what the Taliban and the terrorists they harbor advocate.

The President today will also visit the Labor Department to thank employees and talk about ways to get people back to work.

☑ Message: The terrorist attacks of September 11 had a devastating and direct impact on the American economy. We must do everything we can to jump-start our economy, and we must do everything we can to make sure people who have been laid off can find work.

The President today will meet with the Amir of Qatar and the President of Mexico as he continues to build an international coalition against terrorism.

☑ Message: Victory against terrorism will not take place in a single battle, but in a series of decisive actions against terrorist organizations and those who harbor and support them. This will be a different kind of conflict against a different kind of enemy, and it will require the strong international coalition the President is assembling.

Presidential Action – Thursday, October 4

White House Office of Communications

Today the President will visit the State Department to announce new humanitarian assistance to the Afghan people who are suffering under the Taliban regime.

☑ Message: America has no compassion for terrorists or those who aid them. But we have great compassion for the millions around the world who are hungry and are themselves the victims of hate – including those in Afghanistan. Islam promotes peace, understanding and justice – exactly the opposite of what the Taliban and the terrorists they harbor advocate.

The President today will also visit the Labor Department to thank employees and talk about ways to get people back to work.

☑ Message: The terrorist attacks of September 11 had a devastating and direct impact on the American economy. We must do everything we can to jump-start our economy, and we must do everything we can to make sure people who have been laid off can find work.

The President today will meet with the Amir of Qatar and the President of Mexico as he continues to build an international coalition against terrorism.

☑ Message: Victory against terrorism will not take place in a single battle, but in a series of decisive actions against terrorist organizations and those who harbor and support them. This will be a different kind of conflict against a different kind of enemy, and it will require the strong international coalition the President is assembling.

Presidential Action – Thursday, October 4

White House Office of Communications

Today the President will visit the State Department to announce new humanitarian assistance to the Afghan people who are suffering under the Taliban regime.

☑ Message: America has no compassion for terrorists or those who aid them. But we have great compassion for the millions around the world who are hungry and are themselves the victims of hate – including those in Afghanistan. Islam promotes peace, understanding and justice – exactly the opposite of what the Taliban and the terrorists they harbor advocate.

The President today will also visit the Labor Department to thank employees and talk about ways to get people back to work.

☑ Message: The terrorist attacks of September 11 had a devastating and direct impact on the American economy. We must do everything we can to jump-start our economy, and we must do everything we can to make sure people who have been laid off can find work.

The President today will meet with the Amir of Qatar and the President of Mexico as he continues to build an international coalition against terrorism.

☑ Message: Victory against terrorism will not take place in a single battle, but in a series of decisive actions against terrorist organizations and those who harbor and support them. This will be a different kind of conflict against a different kind of enemy, and it will require the strong international coalition the President is assembling.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

Presidential Action – Thursday, October 4

White House Office of Communications

Today the President will visit the State Department to announce new humanitarian assistance to the Afghan people who are suffering under the Taliban regime.

☑ Message: America has no compassion for terrorists or those who aid them. But we have great compassion for the millions around the world who are hungry and are themselves the victims of hate – including those in Afghanistan. Islam promotes peace, understanding and justice – exactly the opposite of what the Taliban and the terrorists they harbor advocate.

The President today will also visit the Labor Department to thank employees and talk about ways to get people back to work.

☑ Message: The terrorist attacks of September 11 had a devastating and direct impact on the American economy. We must do everything we can to jump-start our economy, and we must do everything we can to make sure people who have been laid off can find work.

The President today will meet with the Amir of Qatar and the President of Mexico as he continues to build an international coalition against terrorism.

☑ Message: Victory against terrorism will not take place in a single battle, but in a series of decisive actions against terrorist organizations and those who harbor and support them. This will be a different kind of conflict against a different kind of enemy, and it will require the strong international coalition the President is assembling.

Presidential Action – Thursday, October 4

White House Office of Communications

Today the President will visit the State Department to announce new humanitarian assistance to the Afghan people who are suffering under the Taliban regime.

☑ Message: America has no compassion for terrorists or those who aid them. But we have great compassion for the millions around the world who are hungry and are themselves the victims of hate – including those in Afghanistan. Islam promotes peace, understanding and justice – exactly the opposite of what the Taliban and the terrorists they harbor advocate.

The President today will also visit the Labor Department to thank employees and talk about ways to get people back to work.

☑ Message: The terrorist attacks of September 11 had a devastating and direct impact on the American economy. We must do everything we can to jump-start our economy, and we must do everything we can to make sure people who have been laid off can find work.

The President today will meet with the Amir of Qatar and the President of Mexico as he continues to build an international coalition against terrorism.

☑ Message: Victory against terrorism will not take place in a single battle, but in a series of decisive actions against terrorist organizations and those who harbor and support them. This will be a different kind of conflict against a different kind of enemy, and it will require the strong international coalition the President is assembling.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

THE BACK TO WORK RELIEF PACKAGE

The President's Back to Work Relief Package is designed to:

- Help those who are losing their jobs because of the September 11 attacks
- Get people working again to help get our economy moving again
- Help ensure that displaced workers have access to health care

The terrorist attacks have affected our economy and many Americans have lost their jobs. The President wants to strengthen America's economy, support Americans while they get through this tough economic time, and help put our people back to work.

The terrorist attacks of September 11 had a devastating and direct impact on the American worker and the American economy. The attacks were a shock to our conscience and they were a shock to our economy. Businesses have lost customers. Consumers and investors have lost confidence. And working people are losing jobs.

We must do everything we can to jump-start our economy – we must do everything we can to make sure people who have been laid off can find work. The President's package will give relief to those who are the hardest hit economically by the attacks.

The Back to Work Relief Package

☑ Temporarily extends unemployment benefits by 13 weeks for Americans who lost their jobs as a direct result of the terrorist attacks.

☑ Provides $3 billion in special National Emergency Grants to help displaced workers maintain health coverage, supplement their income and receive job training. For example, funds could be used to pay up to 75% of health care premiums covered by COBRA for up to ten months.

☑ Makes $11 billion available to states to help low-income workers who are displaced from their jobs receive health insurance.

☑ Encourages displaced workers to take advantage of more than $6 billion in existing federal programs that provide job search services, including job training and placement.

THE BACK TO WORK RELIEF PACKAGE

SUMMARY

The terrorist attacks of September 11 had a devastating and direct impact on our country. Unfortunately, these attacks continue to affect the lives of Americans who have lost their jobs because of the shock to our nation's economy. The airlines and related industries have already announced approximately 100,000 layoffs, and analysts predict that this number could grow. We must not let the terrorist attacks harm one of our country's most valuable resources -- its workforce.

In order to help protect the individuals and families whose livelihoods are threatened because of the economic consequences of these attacks, President Bush proposes to provide relief immediately to those who are hardest hit. The Bush Administration's proposal focuses on mitigating the financial impacts of the terrorist attacks on our workforce while helping the workers who have been permanently laid off get back to work as quickly as possible through training and job search assistance.

To strengthen the safety net for workers during this crisis, President Bush proposes:

- Extending unemployment benefits to Americans whose jobs were affected by the attacks
- Providing $3 billion in special National Emergency Grants to help displaced workers maintain health coverage, supplement their income and receive job training
- Encouraging affected workers to take advantage of more than $6 billion in existing federal programs that provide job search, training, placement and other services.
- Making $11 billion available to states to help low-income workers displaced from their jobs to receive health insurance.

Extending Unemployment Benefits

In some states, and in particular those states that were direct targets of the terrorist attacks on September 11, the economic consequences of September 11 may cause many Americans to lose their jobs and make it harder for them to get back to work quickly. Under current law, states provide a certain number of weeks of unemployment compensation (usually 26 weeks) to individuals who become unemployed.

To help ensure that Americans are able to continue to support themselves and their families during this time of recovery, the President proposes a new temporary Emergency Extended Unemployment Compensation Program. This program:

- Provides thirteen additional weeks of unemployment compensation for individuals who become unemployed after September 11 in states where the state's total unemployment rate increases by 30% over what it was prior to September 11, 2001.

- Provides these same extended benefits automatically to states in which the President issued an emergency or major disaster declaration due to the direct effects of the terrorist attacks on September 11, 2001.
- Provides these additional weeks of compensation at the same level as the prior weeks of unemployment compensation.
- Pays for the additional compensation entirely with federal dollars.
- Maintains this program for 18 months.

Providing $3 Billion in Special National Emergency Grants for Income Support, Certain Health Care Premiums and Job Training

National Emergency Grants (NEGs) are federal grants administered by the Secretary of Labor, and they may be awarded to any state experiencing plant closings or mass layoffs. Currently, the grants may be used to support job training and reemployment services and to make certain limited payments to individuals enrolled in training. The grants also may be used to help pay for certain services, such as childcare and transportation, to help individuals complete training and transition back to work.

In some states, local regions and communities are suffering due to mass layoffs and plant closings caused by the September 11 tragedy. In order to provide assistance to these communities and populations, the President proposes temporarily expanding the National Emergency Grant program and providing $3 billion to assist dislocated workers during this recovery period. This emergency expansion will be maintained for 18 months.

Under this temporary expansion of the program, grants may be used by states to help ensure that dislocated workers: (i) maintain health insurance coverage; (ii) receive some form of income support during the recovery period; and (iii) return to the workforce as quickly as possible with the help of job training and job search assistance.

Specifically, under the program, states experiencing a major plant closure, mass layoff or multiple layoffs or dislocations are eligible for a special National Emergency Grant if the Governor of a state certifies that the events of September 11, 2001 contributed importantly to the closure, layoffs, or dislocations.
Grants could be used by the states to:

- ✓ pay up to 75% of health care premiums covered by COBRA for up to ten months for laid off or dislocated workers (COBRA is a federal law that gives many workers the option of continuing their employer-provided health insurance -- at their own cost -- when they are laid off);
- ✓ provide additional weeks of income support for individuals who have used up their unemployment compensation and are not in states eligible for the Emergency Extended Unemployment Compensation program -- as long as those individuals are enrolled in training;
- ✓ provide income support payments for individuals who are ineligible for unemployment compensation but are able to demonstrate a sufficient attachment to employment -- as long as those individuals are enrolled in training; and

- ✓ provide additional dollars to provide a full array of job search and training services, including customized training, placement assistance and relocation expenses.

Encouraging Americans to Take Advantage of Existing Services

For all Americans who suffer job loss, there continue to be many existing services to help them through this difficult time. The Department of Labor, in cooperation with the states, currently administers and helps fund several programs to assist Americans financially during times of unemployment and help them improve their skills and get back to work quickly. The President's FY 2002 budget included over $6 billion for these programs. Available services include:

- Job training;
- Vocational, career and personal counseling, including grief counseling;
- Comprehensive assessment of employability, development of a re-employment plan, workshops on interviewing and resume preparation;
- Job search and job placement assistance and useful labor market information;
- Needs-related payments;
- Supportive services to help the individual to return to the workforce and/or complete training, including transportation assistance, child care, dependent care; and
- Relocation expenses.

Helping States Provide Health Insurance for Lower-Income Workers and Their Families by Announcing the Availability of $11 Billion in Unspent Funds

Currently, states can apply for expedited review of proposals to expand the health insurance coverage they offer through Medicaid and the State Children's Health Insurance Program (SCHIP). The Department of Health and Human Services is announcing that states have $11 billion in unspent S-CHIP match funds available immediately to support these expansions -- in addition to the $3.1 billion in SCHIP allocations for FY 2002.

- Since January, HHS has approved state plan amendments and waivers that are projected to expand health insurance coverage to 1.5 million Americans and enhanced benefits for another 3.5 million Americans.

- To speed further expansions of coverage, especially to cover the majority of uninsured Americans who have low incomes, an expedited review process is available through the Health Insurance Flexibility and Accountability (HIFA) Initiative.

- HHS will also provide expedited review for health insurance coverage expansions that assist workers who have lost their jobs.

REV_00200449

- To support these expansions, the Department of Health and Human Services is announcing that $11 billion in match funds are available now to virtually all states.

- With substantial funding and a rapid, flexible review process, states have an unprecedented opportunity to implement health insurance coverage expansions best suited to the needs of their citizens in this difficult time.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS ON THE PRESIDENT'S BACK TO WORK RELIEF PACKAGE

Q: Does the President's Back to Work Relief Package provide relief only to employees laid off by the airlines and related industries?

No. Any workers who are laid off because of the events of September 11 are potentially eligible for some form of relief under the President's proposal.

Q: What is the new Emergency Extended Unemployment Compensation program?

The new Emergency Extended Unemployment Compensation (EEUC) program will provide up to 13 extra weeks of unemployment benefits in states where unemployment has increased by 30% since the terrorist attacks. These extra benefits will be available to workers who lost their jobs after September 11 and who have exhausted their regular unemployment benefits.

Q: How does the Emergency Extended Unemployment Compensation program work?

A state can "trigger" EEUC if: (1) there has been a Presidentially-declared disaster or emergency in the state resulting from the September 11 attack; or (2) the state's total unemployment rate for a rolling three month period increases to 30 percent over what it was for the three months prior to September 2001.

Currently, most workers are eligible for 26 weeks of regular unemployment benefits if they lose their jobs. In states that trigger EEUC, the President's proposal would provide an additional 13 weeks of benefits to individuals who lost their jobs after September 11 and have exhausted all of their regular state unemployment benefits.

Q: How would the special National Emergency Grants work?

The special National Emergency Grant provides additional funding to the states to help ensure an effective response to significant worker dislocation resulting from the September 11 terrorist attack. Governors submit applications to the Department of Labor for National Emergency Grants, and the Secretary of Labor awards them under the Workforce Investment Act. Grants may be awarded to a state affected by plant closures, mass layoffs, or multiple layoffs if the governor certifies that the events of September 11 contributed importantly to the closures or layoffs. The grants provide the flexibility to target relief directly to the communities and populations hardest hit by the consequences of the September 11 attacks. The President proposes providing an additional $3 billion for these grants.

Q: What can the National Emergency Grants be used for?

Governors can use the grant money to provide the following relief to eligible individuals:

- ✓ Pay up to 75% of health care premiums covered by COBRA for up to ten months.
- ✓ Provide additional weeks of income support for individuals enrolled in training who have exhausted their unemployment compensation.
- ✓ Provide income support payments for individuals enrolled in training who are ineligible for unemployment compensation.
- ✓ Provide a full array of job search and training services, including customized training, placement assistance and relocation expenses.

Q: What is COBRA?

COBRA (the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act) gives workers who had health insurance through covered employers the right to continue coverage at their own expense if they lose their jobs.

Q: How does the COBRA continuation coverage payment work?

Governors who receive National Emergency Grants may provide dislocated workers up to 75% of their monthly COBRA payment for up to 10 months. In order to receive the COBRA continuation coverage payments, the dislocated workers must be engaged in employment and training activities through the public workforce investment system. Individuals may receive COBRA continuation coverage payments simultaneously with unemployment benefits or other income support.

Q: How would the SCHIP funds help dislocated workers?

Some dislocated workers, especially those with lower incomes, are not eligible for COBRA continuation coverage when they lose their jobs. The Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) has developed an expedited process for helping states expand coverage through Medicaid and the State Children's Health Insurance Program (SCHIP) that can help such workers and their families. This year, HHS has already approved Medicaid and S-CHIP expansions that will make low-cost health insurance coverage available for an additional 1.5 million Americans. HHS has also identified $11 billion in unspent S-CHIP matching funds from previous years that are available now to provide enhanced Federal matches for further expansions of health insurance coverage by states. Enhanced Federal matching means that, depending on the state, the Federal government would pay for 65% to 83% of the costs of covering additional lower-income persons and their families. Rapid review and enhanced-match funds mean that states have an unprecedented opportunity to expand their health insurance programs in the way that is best suited to the needs of their residents.

THE BACK TO WORK RELIEF PACKAGE

The President's Back to Work Relief Package is designed to:

- Help those who are losing their jobs because of the September 11 attacks
- Get people working again to help get our economy moving again
- Help ensure that displaced workers have access to health care

The terrorist attacks have affected our economy and many Americans have lost their jobs. The President wants to strengthen America's economy, support Americans while they get through this tough economic time, and help put our people back to work.

The terrorist attacks of September 11 had a devastating and direct impact on the American worker and the American economy. The attacks were a shock to our conscience and they were a shock to our economy. Businesses have lost customers. Consumers and investors have lost confidence. And working people are losing jobs.

We must do everything we can to jump-start our economy – we must do everything we can to make sure people who have been laid off can find work. The President's package will give relief to those who are the hardest hit economically by the attacks.

The Back to Work Relief Package

☑ Temporarily extends unemployment benefits by 13 weeks for Americans who lost their jobs as a direct result of the terrorist attacks.

☑ Provides $3 billion in special National Emergency Grants to help displaced workers maintain health coverage, supplement their income and receive job training. For example, funds could be used to pay up to 75% of health care premiums covered by COBRA for up to ten months.

☑ Makes $11 billion available to states to help low-income workers who are displaced from their jobs receive health insurance.

☑ Encourages displaced workers to take advantage of more than $6 billion in existing federal programs that provide job search services, including job training and placement.

THE BACK TO WORK RELIEF PACKAGE

SUMMARY

The terrorist attacks of September 11 had a devastating and direct impact on our country. Unfortunately, these attacks continue to affect the lives of Americans who have lost their jobs because of the shock to our nation's economy. The airlines and related industries have already announced approximately 100,000 layoffs, and analysts predict that this number could grow. We must not let the terrorist attacks harm one of our country's most valuable resources -- its workforce.

In order to help protect the individuals and families whose livelihoods are threatened because of the economic consequences of these attacks, President Bush proposes to provide relief immediately to those who are hardest hit. The Bush Administration's proposal focuses on mitigating the financial impacts of the terrorist attacks on our workforce while helping the workers who have been permanently laid off get back to work as quickly as possible through training and job search assistance.

To strengthen the safety net for workers during this crisis, President Bush proposes:

- Extending unemployment benefits to Americans whose jobs were affected by the attacks
- Providing $3 billion in special National Emergency Grants to help displaced workers maintain health coverage, supplement their income and receive job training
- Encouraging affected workers to take advantage of more than $6 billion in existing federal programs that provide job search, training, placement and other services.
- Making $11 billion available to states to help low-income workers displaced from their jobs to receive health insurance.

Extending Unemployment Benefits

In some states, and in particular those states that were direct targets of the terrorist attacks on September 11, the economic consequences of September 11 may cause many Americans to lose their jobs and make it harder for them to get back to work quickly. Under current law, states provide a certain number of weeks of unemployment compensation (usually 26 weeks) to individuals who become unemployed.

To help ensure that Americans are able to continue to support themselves and their families during this time of recovery, the President proposes a new temporary Emergency Extended Unemployment Compensation Program. This program:

- Provides thirteen additional weeks of unemployment compensation for individuals who become unemployed after September 11 in states where the state's total unemployment rate increases by 30% over what it was prior to September 11, 2001.

- Provides these same extended benefits automatically to states in which the President issued an emergency or major disaster declaration due to the direct effects of the terrorist attacks on September 11, 2001.
- Provides these additional weeks of compensation at the same level as the prior weeks of unemployment compensation.
- Pays for the additional compensation entirely with federal dollars.
- Maintains this program for 18 months.

Providing $3 Billion in Special National Emergency Grants for Income Support, Certain Health Care Premiums and Job Training

National Emergency Grants (NEGs) are federal grants administered by the Secretary of Labor, and they may be awarded to any state experiencing plant closings or mass layoffs. Currently, the grants may be used to support job training and reemployment services and to make certain limited payments to individuals enrolled in training. The grants also may be used to help pay for certain services, such as childcare and transportation, to help individuals complete training and transition back to work.

In some states, local regions and communities are suffering due to mass layoffs and plant closings caused by the September 11 tragedy. In order to provide assistance to these communities and populations, the President proposes temporarily expanding the National Emergency Grant program and providing $3 billion to assist dislocated workers during this recovery period. This emergency expansion will be maintained for 18 months.

Under this temporary expansion of the program, grants may be used by states to help ensure that dislocated workers: (i) maintain health insurance coverage; (ii) receive some form of income support during the recovery period; and (iii) return to the workforce as quickly as possible with the help of job training and job search assistance.

Specifically, under the program, states experiencing a major plant closure, mass layoff or multiple layoffs or dislocations are eligible for a special National Emergency Grant if the Governor of a state certifies that the events of September 11, 2001 contributed importantly to the closure, layoffs, or dislocations.
Grants could be used by the states to:

- ✓ pay up to 75% of health care premiums covered by COBRA for up to ten months for laid off or dislocated workers (COBRA is a federal law that gives many workers the option of continuing their employer-provided health insurance -- at their own cost -- when they are laid off);
- ✓ provide additional weeks of income support for individuals who have used up their unemployment compensation and are not in states eligible for the Emergency Extended Unemployment Compensation program -- as long as those individuals are enrolled in training;
- ✓ provide income support payments for individuals who are ineligible for unemployment compensation but are able to demonstrate a sufficient attachment to employment -- as long as those individuals are enrolled in training; and

- ✓ provide additional dollars to provide a full array of job search and training services, including customized training, placement assistance and relocation expenses.

Encouraging Americans to Take Advantage of Existing Services

For all Americans who suffer job loss, there continue to be many existing services to help them through this difficult time. The Department of Labor, in cooperation with the states, currently administers and helps fund several programs to assist Americans financially during times of unemployment and help them improve their skills and get back to work quickly. The President's FY 2002 budget included over $6 billion for these programs. Available services include:

- Job training;
- Vocational, career and personal counseling, including grief counseling;
- Comprehensive assessment of employability, development of a re-employment plan, workshops on interviewing and resume preparation;
- Job search and job placement assistance and useful labor market information;
- Needs-related payments;
- Supportive services to help the individual to return to the workforce and/or complete training, including transportation assistance, child care, dependent care; and
- Relocation expenses.

Helping States Provide Health Insurance for Lower-Income Workers and Their Families by Announcing the Availability of $11 Billion in Unspent Funds

Currently, states can apply for expedited review of proposals to expand the health insurance coverage they offer through Medicaid and the State Children's Health Insurance Program (SCHIP). The Department of Health and Human Services is announcing that states have $11 billion in unspent S-CHIP match funds available immediately to support these expansions -- in addition to the $3.1 billion in SCHIP allocations for FY 2002.

- Since January, HHS has approved state plan amendments and waivers that are projected to expand health insurance coverage to 1.5 million Americans and enhanced benefits for another 3.5 million Americans.

- To speed further expansions of coverage, especially to cover the majority of uninsured Americans who have low incomes, an expedited review process is available through the Health Insurance Flexibility and Accountability (HIFA) Initiative.

- HHS will also provide expedited review for health insurance coverage expansions that assist workers who have lost their jobs.

REV_00200473

- To support these expansions, the Department of Health and Human Services is announcing that $11 billion in match funds are available now to virtually all states.

- With substantial funding and a rapid, flexible review process, states have an unprecedented opportunity to implement health insurance coverage expansions best suited to the needs of their citizens in this difficult time.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS ON THE PRESIDENT'S BACK TO WORK RELIEF PACKAGE

Q: Does the President's Back to Work Relief Package provide relief only to employees laid off by the airlines and related industries?

No. Any workers who are laid off because of the events of September 11 are potentially eligible for some form of relief under the President's proposal.

Q: What is the new Emergency Extended Unemployment Compensation program?

The new Emergency Extended Unemployment Compensation (EEUC) program will provide up to 13 extra weeks of unemployment benefits in states where unemployment has increased by 30% since the terrorist attacks. These extra benefits will be available to workers who lost their jobs after September 11 and who have exhausted their regular unemployment benefits.

Q: How does the Emergency Extended Unemployment Compensation program work?

A state can "trigger" EEUC if: (1) there has been a Presidentially-declared disaster or emergency in the state resulting from the September 11 attack; or (2) the state's total unemployment rate for a rolling three month period increases to 30 percent over what it was for the three months prior to September 2001.

Currently, most workers are eligible for 26 weeks of regular unemployment benefits if they lose their jobs. In states that trigger EEUC, the President's proposal would provide an additional 13 weeks of benefits to individuals who lost their jobs after September 11 and have exhausted all of their regular state unemployment benefits.

Q: How would the special National Emergency Grants work?

The special National Emergency Grant provides additional funding to the states to help ensure an effective response to significant worker dislocation resulting from the September 11 terrorist attack. Governors submit applications to the Department of Labor for National Emergency Grants, and the Secretary of Labor awards them under the Workforce Investment Act. Grants may be awarded to a state affected by plant closures, mass layoffs, or multiple layoffs if the governor certifies that the events of September 11 contributed importantly to the closures or layoffs. The grants provide the flexibility to target relief directly to the communities and populations hardest hit by the consequences of the September 11 attacks. The President proposes providing an additional $3 billion for these grants.

Q: What can the National Emergency Grants be used for?

Governors can use the grant money to provide the following relief to eligible individuals:

- ✓ Pay up to 75% of health care premiums covered by COBRA for up to ten months.
- ✓ Provide additional weeks of income support for individuals enrolled in training who have exhausted their unemployment compensation.
- ✓ Provide income support payments for individuals enrolled in training who are ineligible for unemployment compensation.
- ✓ Provide a full array of job search and training services, including customized training, placement assistance and relocation expenses.

Q: What is COBRA?

COBRA (the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act) gives workers who had health insurance through covered employers the right to continue coverage at their own expense if they lose their jobs.

Q: How does the COBRA continuation coverage payment work?

Governors who receive National Emergency Grants may provide dislocated workers up to 75% of their monthly COBRA payment for up to 10 months. In order to receive the COBRA continuation coverage payments, the dislocated workers must be engaged in employment and training activities through the public workforce investment system. Individuals may receive COBRA continuation coverage payments simultaneously with unemployment benefits or other income support.

Q: How would the SCHIP funds help dislocated workers?

Some dislocated workers, especially those with lower incomes, are not eligible for COBRA continuation coverage when they lose their jobs. The Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) has developed an expedited process for helping states expand coverage through Medicaid and the State Children's Health Insurance Program (SCHIP) that can help such workers and their families. This year, HHS has already approved Medicaid and S-CHIP expansions that will make low-cost health insurance coverage available for an additional 1.5 million Americans. HHS has also identified $11 billion in unspent S-CHIP matching funds from previous years that are available now to provide enhanced Federal matches for further expansions of health insurance coverage by states. Enhanced Federal matching means that, depending on the state, the Federal government would pay for 65% to 83% of the costs of covering additional lower-income persons and their families. Rapid review and enhanced-match funds mean that states have an unprecedented opportunity to expand their health insurance programs in the way that is best suited to the needs of their residents.

Working to Help America's Workers

Since the tragic events of September 11th, the Department of Labor – led by Secretary Chao -- has mobilized its resources to help American workers affected by the disaster – those providing rescue and recovery, those displaced from their jobs, and those deployed in service to our nation.

THE BACK TO WORK RELIEF PACKAGE

The President's Back to Work Relief Package is designed to:

- Help those who are losing their jobs because of the September 11 attacks
- Get people working again to help get our economy moving again
- Help ensure that displaced workers have access to health care

The terrorist attacks have affected our economy and many Americans have lost their jobs. The President wants to strengthen America's economy, support Americans while they get through this tough economic time, and help put our people back to work.

The terrorist attacks of September 11 had a devastating and direct impact on the American worker and the American economy. The attacks were a shock to our conscience and they were a shock to our economy. Businesses have lost customers. Consumers and investors have lost confidence. And working people are losing jobs.

We must do everything we can to jump-start our economy – we must do everything we can to make sure people who have been laid off can find work. The President's package will give relief to those who are the hardest hit economically by the attacks.

The Back to Work Relief Package

☑ Temporarily extends unemployment benefits by 13 weeks for Americans who lost their jobs as a direct result of the terrorist attacks.

☑ Provides $3 billion in special National Emergency Grants to help displaced workers maintain health coverage, supplement their income and receive job training. For example, funds could be used to pay up to 75% of health care premiums covered by COBRA for up to ten months.

☑ Makes $11 billion available to states to help low-income workers who are displaced from their jobs receive health insurance.

☑ Encourages displaced workers to take advantage of more than $6 billion in existing federal programs that provide job search services, including job training and placement.

THE BACK TO WORK RELIEF PACKAGE

SUMMARY

The terrorist attacks of September 11 had a devastating and direct impact on our country. Unfortunately, these attacks continue to affect the lives of Americans who have lost their jobs because of the shock to our nation's economy. The airlines and related industries have already announced approximately 100,000 layoffs, and analysts predict that this number could grow. We must not let the terrorist attacks harm one of our country's most valuable resources -- its workforce.

In order to help protect the individuals and families whose livelihoods are threatened because of the economic consequences of these attacks, President Bush proposes to provide relief immediately to those who are hardest hit. The Bush Administration's proposal focuses on mitigating the financial impacts of the terrorist attacks on our workforce while helping the workers who have been permanently laid off get back to work as quickly as possible through training and job search assistance.

To strengthen the safety net for workers during this crisis, President Bush proposes:

- Extending unemployment benefits to Americans whose jobs were affected by the attacks
- Providing $3 billion in special National Emergency Grants to help displaced workers maintain health coverage, supplement their income and receive job training
- Encouraging affected workers to take advantage of more than $6 billion in existing federal programs that provide job search, training, placement and other services.
- Making $11 billion available to states to help low-income workers displaced from their jobs to receive health insurance.

Extending Unemployment Benefits

In some states, and in particular those states that were direct targets of the terrorist attacks on September 11, the economic consequences of September 11 may cause many Americans to lose their jobs and make it harder for them to get back to work quickly. Under current law, states provide a certain number of weeks of unemployment compensation (usually 26 weeks) to individuals who become unemployed.

To help ensure that Americans are able to continue to support themselves and their families during this time of recovery, the President proposes a new temporary Emergency Extended Unemployment Compensation Program. This program:

- Provides thirteen additional weeks of unemployment compensation for individuals who become unemployed after September 11 in states where the state's total unemployment rate increases by 30% over what it was prior to September 11, 2001.

- Provides these same extended benefits automatically to states in which the President issued an emergency or major disaster declaration due to the direct effects of the terrorist attacks on September 11, 2001.
- Provides these additional weeks of compensation at the same level as the prior weeks of unemployment compensation.
- Pays for the additional compensation entirely with federal dollars.
- Maintains this program for 18 months.

Providing $3 Billion in Special National Emergency Grants for Income Support, Certain Health Care Premiums and Job Training

National Emergency Grants (NEGs) are federal grants administered by the Secretary of Labor, and they may be awarded to any state experiencing plant closings or mass layoffs. Currently, the grants may be used to support job training and reemployment services and to make certain limited payments to individuals enrolled in training. The grants also may be used to help pay for certain services, such as childcare and transportation, to help individuals complete training and transition back to work.

In some states, local regions and communities are suffering due to mass layoffs and plant closings caused by the September 11 tragedy. In order to provide assistance to these communities and populations, the President proposes temporarily expanding the National Emergency Grant program and providing $3 billion to assist dislocated workers during this recovery period. This emergency expansion will be maintained for 18 months.

Under this temporary expansion of the program, grants may be used by states to help ensure that dislocated workers: (i) maintain health insurance coverage; (ii) receive some form of income support during the recovery period; and (iii) return to the workforce as quickly as possible with the help of job training and job search assistance.

Specifically, under the program, states experiencing a major plant closure, mass layoff or multiple layoffs or dislocations are eligible for a special National Emergency Grant if the Governor of a state certifies that the events of September 11, 2001 contributed importantly to the closure, layoffs, or dislocations.
Grants could be used by the states to:

- ✓ pay up to 75% of health care premiums covered by COBRA for up to ten months for laid off or dislocated workers (COBRA is a federal law that gives many workers the option of continuing their employer-provided health insurance -- at their own cost -- when they are laid off);
- ✓ provide additional weeks of income support for individuals who have used up their unemployment compensation and are not in states eligible for the Emergency Extended Unemployment Compensation program -- as long as those individuals are enrolled in training;
- ✓ provide income support payments for individuals who are ineligible for unemployment compensation but are able to demonstrate a sufficient attachment to employment -- as long as those individuals are enrolled in training; and

- ✓ provide additional dollars to provide a full array of job search and training services, including customized training, placement assistance and relocation expenses.

Encouraging Americans to Take Advantage of Existing Services

For all Americans who suffer job loss, there continue to be many existing services to help them through this difficult time. The Department of Labor, in cooperation with the states, currently administers and helps fund several programs to assist Americans financially during times of unemployment and help them improve their skills and get back to work quickly. The President's FY 2002 budget included over $6 billion for these programs. Available services include:

- Job training;
- Vocational, career and personal counseling, including grief counseling;
- Comprehensive assessment of employability, development of a re-employment plan, workshops on interviewing and resume preparation;
- Job search and job placement assistance and useful labor market information;
- Needs-related payments;
- Supportive services to help the individual to return to the workforce and/or complete training, including transportation assistance, child care, dependent care; and
- Relocation expenses.

Helping States Provide Health Insurance for Lower-Income Workers and Their Families by Announcing the Availability of $11 Billion in Unspent Funds

Currently, states can apply for expedited review of proposals to expand the health insurance coverage they offer through Medicaid and the State Children's Health Insurance Program (SCHIP). The Department of Health and Human Services is announcing that states have $11 billion in unspent S-CHIP match funds available immediately to support these expansions -- in addition to the $3.1 billion in SCHIP allocations for FY 2002.

- Since January, HHS has approved state plan amendments and waivers that are projected to expand health insurance coverage to 1.5 million Americans and enhanced benefits for another 3.5 million Americans.

- To speed further expansions of coverage, especially to cover the majority of uninsured Americans who have low incomes, an expedited review process is available through the Health Insurance Flexibility and Accountability (HIFA) Initiative.

- HHS will also provide expedited review for health insurance coverage expansions that assist workers who have lost their jobs.

REV_00200496

- To support these expansions, the Department of Health and Human Services is announcing that $11 billion in match funds are available now to virtually all states.

- With substantial funding and a rapid, flexible review process, states have an unprecedented opportunity to implement health insurance coverage expansions best suited to the needs of their citizens in this difficult time.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS ON THE PRESIDENT'S BACK TO WORK RELIEF PACKAGE

Q: Does the President's Back to Work Relief Package provide relief only to employees laid off by the airlines and related industries?

No. Any workers who are laid off because of the events of September 11 are potentially eligible for some form of relief under the President's proposal.

Q: What is the new Emergency Extended Unemployment Compensation program?

The new Emergency Extended Unemployment Compensation (EEUC) program will provide up to 13 extra weeks of unemployment benefits in states where unemployment has increased by 30% since the terrorist attacks. These extra benefits will be available to workers who lost their jobs after September 11 and who have exhausted their regular unemployment benefits.

Q: How does the Emergency Extended Unemployment Compensation program work?

A state can "trigger" EEUC if: (1) there has been a Presidentially-declared disaster or emergency in the state resulting from the September 11 attack; or (2) the state's total unemployment rate for a rolling three month period increases to 30 percent over what it was for the three months prior to September 2001.

Currently, most workers are eligible for 26 weeks of regular unemployment benefits if they lose their jobs. In states that trigger EEUC, the President's proposal would provide an additional 13 weeks of benefits to individuals who lost their jobs after September 11 and have exhausted all of their regular state unemployment benefits.

Q: How would the special National Emergency Grants work?

The special National Emergency Grant provides additional funding to the states to help ensure an effective response to significant worker dislocation resulting from the September 11 terrorist attack. Governors submit applications to the Department of Labor for National Emergency Grants, and the Secretary of Labor awards them under the Workforce Investment Act. Grants may be awarded to a state affected by plant closures, mass layoffs, or multiple layoffs if the governor certifies that the events of September 11 contributed importantly to the closures or layoffs. The grants provide the flexibility to target relief directly to the communities and populations hardest hit by the consequences of the September 11 attacks. The President proposes providing an additional $3 billion for these grants.

Q: What can the National Emergency Grants be used for?

Governors can use the grant money to provide the following relief to eligible individuals:

- ✓ Pay up to 75% of health care premiums covered by COBRA for up to ten months.
- ✓ Provide additional weeks of income support for individuals enrolled in training who have exhausted their unemployment compensation.
- ✓ Provide income support payments for individuals enrolled in training who are ineligible for unemployment compensation.
- ✓ Provide a full array of job search and training services, including customized training, placement assistance and relocation expenses.

Q: What is COBRA?

COBRA (the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act) gives workers who had health insurance through covered employers the right to continue coverage at their own expense if they lose their jobs.

Q: How does the COBRA continuation coverage payment work?

Governors who receive National Emergency Grants may provide dislocated workers up to 75% of their monthly COBRA payment for up to 10 months. In order to receive the COBRA continuation coverage payments, the dislocated workers must be engaged in employment and training activities through the public workforce investment system. Individuals may receive COBRA continuation coverage payments simultaneously with unemployment benefits or other income support.

Q: How would the SCHIP funds help dislocated workers?

Some dislocated workers, especially those with lower incomes, are not eligible for COBRA continuation coverage when they lose their jobs. The Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) has developed an expedited process for helping states expand coverage through Medicaid and the State Children's Health Insurance Program (SCHIP) that can help such workers and their families. This year, HHS has already approved Medicaid and S-CHIP expansions that will make low-cost health insurance coverage available for an additional 1.5 million Americans. HHS has also identified $11 billion in unspent S-CHIP matching funds from previous years that are available now to provide enhanced Federal matches for further expansions of health insurance coverage by states. Enhanced Federal matching means that, depending on the state, the Federal government would pay for 65% to 83% of the costs of covering additional lower-income persons and their families. Rapid review and enhanced-match funds mean that states have an unprecedented opportunity to expand their health insurance programs in the way that is best suited to the needs of their residents.

Working to Help America's Workers

THE BACK TO WORK RELIEF PACKAGE

The President's Back to Work Relief Package is designed to:

- Help those who are losing their jobs because of the September 11 attacks
- Get people working again to help get our economy moving again
- Help ensure that displaced workers have access to health care

The terrorist attacks have affected our economy and many Americans have lost their jobs. The President wants to strengthen America's economy, support Americans while they get through this tough economic time, and help put our people back to work.

The terrorist attacks of September 11 had a devastating and direct impact on the American worker and the American economy. The attacks were a shock to our conscience and they were a shock to our economy. Businesses have lost customers. Consumers and investors have lost confidence. And working people are losing jobs.

We must do everything we can to jump-start our economy – we must do everything we can to make sure people who have been laid off can find work. The President's package will give relief to those who are the hardest hit economically by the attacks.

The Back to Work Relief Package

☑ Temporarily extends unemployment benefits by 13 weeks for Americans who lost their jobs as a direct result of the terrorist attacks.

☑ Provides $3 billion in special National Emergency Grants to help displaced workers maintain health coverage, supplement their income and receive job training. For example, funds could be used to pay up to 75% of health care premiums covered by COBRA for up to ten months.

☑ Makes $11 billion available to states to help low-income workers who are displaced from their jobs receive health insurance.

☑ Encourages displaced workers to take advantage of more than $6 billion in existing federal programs that provide job search services, including job training and placement.

THE BACK TO WORK RELIEF PACKAGE

SUMMARY

The terrorist attacks of September 11 had a devastating and direct impact on our country. Unfortunately, these attacks continue to affect the lives of Americans who have lost their jobs because of the shock to our nation's economy. The airlines and related industries have already announced approximately 100,000 layoffs, and analysts predict that this number could grow. We must not let the terrorist attacks harm one of our country's most valuable resources -- its workforce.

In order to help protect the individuals and families whose livelihoods are threatened because of the economic consequences of these attacks, President Bush proposes to provide relief immediately to those who are hardest hit. The Bush Administration's proposal focuses on mitigating the financial impacts of the terrorist attacks on our workforce while helping the workers who have been permanently laid off get back to work as quickly as possible through training and job search assistance.

To strengthen the safety net for workers during this crisis, President Bush proposes:

- Extending unemployment benefits to Americans whose jobs were affected by the attacks
- Providing $3 billion in special National Emergency Grants to help displaced workers maintain health coverage, supplement their income and receive job training
- Encouraging affected workers to take advantage of more than $6 billion in existing federal programs that provide job search, training, placement and other services.
- Making $11 billion available to states to help low-income workers displaced from their jobs to receive health insurance.

Extending Unemployment Benefits

In some states, and in particular those states that were direct targets of the terrorist attacks on September 11, the economic consequences of September 11 may cause many Americans to lose their jobs and make it harder for them to get back to work quickly. Under current law, states provide a certain number of weeks of unemployment compensation (usually 26 weeks) to individuals who become unemployed.

To help ensure that Americans are able to continue to support themselves and their families during this time of recovery, the President proposes a new temporary Emergency Extended Unemployment Compensation Program. This program:

- Provides thirteen additional weeks of unemployment compensation for individuals who become unemployed after September 11 in states where the state's total unemployment rate increases by 30% over what it was prior to September 11, 2001.

- Provides these same extended benefits automatically to states in which the President issued an emergency or major disaster declaration due to the direct effects of the terrorist attacks on September 11, 2001.
- Provides these additional weeks of compensation at the same level as the prior weeks of unemployment compensation.
- Pays for the additional compensation entirely with federal dollars.
- Maintains this program for 18 months.

Providing $3 Billion in Special National Emergency Grants for Income Support, Certain Health Care Premiums and Job Training

National Emergency Grants (NEGs) are federal grants administered by the Secretary of Labor, and they may be awarded to any state experiencing plant closings or mass layoffs. Currently, the grants may be used to support job training and reemployment services and to make certain limited payments to individuals enrolled in training. The grants also may be used to help pay for certain services, such as childcare and transportation, to help individuals complete training and transition back to work.

In some states, local regions and communities are suffering due to mass layoffs and plant closings caused by the September 11 tragedy. In order to provide assistance to these communities and populations, the President proposes temporarily expanding the National Emergency Grant program and providing $3 billion to assist dislocated workers during this recovery period. This emergency expansion will be maintained for 18 months.

Under this temporary expansion of the program, grants may be used by states to help ensure that dislocated workers: (i) maintain health insurance coverage; (ii) receive some form of income support during the recovery period; and (iii) return to the workforce as quickly as possible with the help of job training and job search assistance.

Specifically, under the program, states experiencing a major plant closure, mass layoff or multiple layoffs or dislocations are eligible for a special National Emergency Grant if the Governor of a state certifies that the events of September 11, 2001 contributed importantly to the closure, layoffs, or dislocations.
Grants could be used by the states to:

- ✓ pay up to 75% of health care premiums covered by COBRA for up to ten months for laid off or dislocated workers (COBRA is a federal law that gives many workers the option of continuing their employer-provided health insurance -- at their own cost -- when they are laid off);
- ✓ provide additional weeks of income support for individuals who have used up their unemployment compensation and are not in states eligible for the Emergency Extended Unemployment Compensation program -- as long as those individuals are enrolled in training;
- ✓ provide income support payments for individuals who are ineligible for unemployment compensation but are able to demonstrate a sufficient attachment to employment -- as long as those individuals are enrolled in training; and

- ✓ provide additional dollars to provide a full array of job search and training services, including customized training, placement assistance and relocation expenses.

Encouraging Americans to Take Advantage of Existing Services

For all Americans who suffer job loss, there continue to be many existing services to help them through this difficult time. The Department of Labor, in cooperation with the states, currently administers and helps fund several programs to assist Americans financially during times of unemployment and help them improve their skills and get back to work quickly. The President's FY 2002 budget included over $6 billion for these programs. Available services include:

- Job training;
- Vocational, career and personal counseling, including grief counseling;
- Comprehensive assessment of employability, development of a re-employment plan, workshops on interviewing and resume preparation;
- Job search and job placement assistance and useful labor market information;
- Needs-related payments;
- Supportive services to help the individual to return to the workforce and/or complete training, including transportation assistance, child care, dependent care; and
- Relocation expenses.

Helping States Provide Health Insurance for Lower-Income Workers and Their Families by Announcing the Availability of $11 Billion in Unspent Funds

Currently, states can apply for expedited review of proposals to expand the health insurance coverage they offer through Medicaid and the State Children's Health Insurance Program (SCHIP). The Department of Health and Human Services is announcing that states have $11 billion in unspent S-CHIP match funds available immediately to support these expansions -- in addition to the $3.1 billion in SCHIP allocations for FY 2002.

- Since January, HHS has approved state plan amendments and waivers that are projected to expand health insurance coverage to 1.5 million Americans and enhanced benefits for another 3.5 million Americans.

- To speed further expansions of coverage, especially to cover the majority of uninsured Americans who have low incomes, an expedited review process is available through the Health Insurance Flexibility and Accountability (HIFA) Initiative.

- HHS will also provide expedited review for health insurance coverage expansions that assist workers who have lost their jobs.

REV_00200519

- To support these expansions, the Department of Health and Human Services is announcing that $11 billion in match funds are available now to virtually all states.

- With substantial funding and a rapid, flexible review process, states have an unprecedented opportunity to implement health insurance coverage expansions best suited to the needs of their citizens in this difficult time.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS ON THE PRESIDENT'S BACK TO WORK RELIEF PACKAGE

Q: Does the President's Back to Work Relief Package provide relief only to employees laid off by the airlines and related industries?

No. Any workers who are laid off because of the events of September 11 are potentially eligible for some form of relief under the President's proposal.

Q: What is the new Emergency Extended Unemployment Compensation program?

The new Emergency Extended Unemployment Compensation (EEUC) program will provide up to 13 extra weeks of unemployment benefits in states where unemployment has increased by 30% since the terrorist attacks. These extra benefits will be available to workers who lost their jobs after September 11 and who have exhausted their regular unemployment benefits.

Q: How does the Emergency Extended Unemployment Compensation program work?

A state can "trigger" EEUC if: (1) there has been a Presidentially-declared disaster or emergency in the state resulting from the September 11 attack; or (2) the state's total unemployment rate for a rolling three month period increases to 30 percent over what it was for the three months prior to September 2001.

Currently, most workers are eligible for 26 weeks of regular unemployment benefits if they lose their jobs. In states that trigger EEUC, the President's proposal would provide an additional 13 weeks of benefits to individuals who lost their jobs after September 11 and have exhausted all of their regular state unemployment benefits.

Q: How would the special National Emergency Grants work?

The special National Emergency Grant provides additional funding to the states to help ensure an effective response to significant worker dislocation resulting from the September 11 terrorist attack. Governors submit applications to the Department of Labor for National Emergency Grants, and the Secretary of Labor awards them under the Workforce Investment Act. Grants may be awarded to a state affected by plant closures, mass layoffs, or multiple layoffs if the governor certifies that the events of September 11 contributed importantly to the closures or layoffs. The grants provide the flexibility to target relief directly to the communities and populations hardest hit by the consequences of the September 11 attacks. The President proposes providing an additional $3 billion for these grants.

Q: What can the National Emergency Grants be used for?

Governors can use the grant money to provide the following relief to eligible individuals:

- ✓ Pay up to 75% of health care premiums covered by COBRA for up to ten months.
- ✓ Provide additional weeks of income support for individuals enrolled in training who have exhausted their unemployment compensation.
- ✓ Provide income support payments for individuals enrolled in training who are ineligible for unemployment compensation.
- ✓ Provide a full array of job search and training services, including customized training, placement assistance and relocation expenses.

Q: What is COBRA?

COBRA (the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act) gives workers who had health insurance through covered employers the right to continue coverage at their own expense if they lose their jobs.

Q: How does the COBRA continuation coverage payment work?

Governors who receive National Emergency Grants may provide dislocated workers up to 75% of their monthly COBRA payment for up to 10 months. In order to receive the COBRA continuation coverage payments, the dislocated workers must be engaged in employment and training activities through the public workforce investment system. Individuals may receive COBRA continuation coverage payments simultaneously with unemployment benefits or other income support.

Q: How would the SCHIP funds help dislocated workers?

Some dislocated workers, especially those with lower incomes, are not eligible for COBRA continuation coverage when they lose their jobs. The Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) has developed an expedited process for helping states expand coverage through Medicaid and the State Children's Health Insurance Program (SCHIP) that can help such workers and their families. This year, HHS has already approved Medicaid and S-CHIP expansions that will make low-cost health insurance coverage available for an additional 1.5 million Americans. HHS has also identified $11 billion in unspent S-CHIP matching funds from previous years that are available now to provide enhanced Federal matches for further expansions of health insurance coverage by states. Enhanced Federal matching means that, depending on the state, the Federal government would pay for 65% to 83% of the costs of covering additional lower-income persons and their families. Rapid review and enhanced-match funds mean that states have an unprecedented opportunity to expand their health insurance programs in the way that is best suited to the needs of their residents.

Working to Help America's Workers

Since the tragic events of September 11th, the Department of Labor – led by Secretary Chao -- has mobilized its resources to help American workers affected by the disaster – those providing rescue and recovery, those displaced from their jobs, and those deployed in service to our nation.

Helping the Workers Providing Rescue and Recovery

- ✓ OSHA joined EPA in providing extensive environmental and occupational safety monitoring data of the World Trade Center site, including tests of more than 800 ambient air samples and nearly 200 dust samples.
- ✓ OSHA worked with the FBI to provide basic training about possible onsite hazards and the use of personal protective equipment and respirators to FBI investigative personnel.
- ✓ OSHA worked with Consolidated Edison to ensure safety for employees who are digging trenches because of leaking underground gas lines.
- ✓ The Office of Worker Compensation Claims ("OWCP") is expediting workers' compensation claims for eligible federal staff and emergency personnel.

Helping the Workers Displaced from their Jobs

- ✓ OSHA experts hit the ground in NYC, monitoring for possible contaminants at buildings near the disaster site to determine whether it was safe for workers to return.
- ✓ New York has received $25 million in National Emergency Grants to aid dislocated workers
- ✓ New York has received $3.5 million to bolster its unemployment insurance infrastructure
- ✓ Requests from Virginia and Minnesota are pending
- ✓ Unemployment insurance is providing temporary wage replacements for eligible workers who lost their jobs or have been laid off as a result.
- ✓ In response to alerts of potential staffing cuts by businesses nationwide, states are sending in Rapid Response Services teams under the leadership of the Employment and Training Administration to help assess the needs of 70,000 employees before they are laid off.
- ✓ The ETA supports a $1.2 billion state and local workforce services system nationwide to serve dislocated workers.
- ✓ Rapid Reemployment Services – one-stop centers in all 50 states – are helping dislocated workers find jobs, training, and unemployment counseling.
- ✓ The ETA toll-free hotline – 1-877-US2-JOBS - provides callers with information about their local help centers
- ✓ Four DOL websites, in partnership with state and local agencies, offer online job banks, job search help, and training information:

  www.ajb.org (America's Job Bank)
  www.acinet.org (America's Career InfoNet)
  www.alx.org (America's Learning eXchange)
  www.servicelocator.org (America's Service Locator)

- ✓ The DOL website www.dol.gov provides a wealth of information, contacts and links to job help sources.

Helping the Workers Deployed for Our Country

- ✓ To provide peace of mind for reservists called to active duty, the Department of Labor has reminded employers and employees that federal law requires employers to give reservists their jobs when they return from duty.

THE BACK TO WORK RELIEF PACKAGE

The President's Back to Work Relief Package is designed to:

- Help those who are losing their jobs because of the September 11 attacks
- Get people working again to help get our economy moving again
- Help ensure that displaced workers have access to health care

The terrorist attacks have affected our economy and many Americans have lost their jobs. The President wants to strengthen America's economy, support Americans while they get through this tough economic time, and help put our people back to work.

The terrorist attacks of September 11 had a devastating and direct impact on the American worker and the American economy. The attacks were a shock to our conscience and they were a shock to our economy. Businesses have lost customers. Consumers and investors have lost confidence. And working people are losing jobs.

We must do everything we can to jump-start our economy – we must do everything we can to make sure people who have been laid off can find work. The President's package will give relief to those who are the hardest hit economically by the attacks.

The Back to Work Relief Package

☑ Temporarily extends unemployment benefits by 13 weeks for Americans who lost their jobs as a direct result of the terrorist attacks.

☑ Provides $3 billion in special National Emergency Grants to help displaced workers maintain health coverage, supplement their income and receive job training. For example, funds could be used to pay up to 75% of health care premiums covered by COBRA for up to ten months.

☑ Makes $11 billion available to states to help low-income workers who are displaced from their jobs receive health insurance.

☑ Encourages displaced workers to take advantage of more than $6 billion in existing federal programs that provide job search services, including job training and placement.

THE BACK TO WORK RELIEF PACKAGE

SUMMARY

The terrorist attacks of September 11 had a devastating and direct impact on our country. Unfortunately, these attacks continue to affect the lives of Americans who have lost their jobs because of the shock to our nation's economy. The airlines and related industries have already announced approximately 100,000 layoffs, and analysts predict that this number could grow. We must not let the terrorist attacks harm one of our country's most valuable resources -- its workforce.

In order to help protect the individuals and families whose livelihoods are threatened because of the economic consequences of these attacks, President Bush proposes to provide relief immediately to those who are hardest hit. The Bush Administration's proposal focuses on mitigating the financial impacts of the terrorist attacks on our workforce while helping the workers who have been permanently laid off get back to work as quickly as possible through training and job search assistance.

To strengthen the safety net for workers during this crisis, President Bush proposes:

- Extending unemployment benefits to Americans whose jobs were affected by the attacks
- Providing $3 billion in special National Emergency Grants to help displaced workers maintain health coverage, supplement their income and receive job training
- Encouraging affected workers to take advantage of more than $6 billion in existing federal programs that provide job search, training, placement and other services.
- Making $11 billion available to states to help low-income workers displaced from their jobs to receive health insurance.

Extending Unemployment Benefits

In some states, and in particular those states that were direct targets of the terrorist attacks on September 11, the economic consequences of September 11 may cause many Americans to lose their jobs and make it harder for them to get back to work quickly. Under current law, states provide a certain number of weeks of unemployment compensation (usually 26 weeks) to individuals who become unemployed.

To help ensure that Americans are able to continue to support themselves and their families during this time of recovery, the President proposes a new temporary Emergency Extended Unemployment Compensation Program. This program:

- Provides thirteen additional weeks of unemployment compensation for individuals who become unemployed after September 11 in states where the state's total unemployment rate increases by 30% over what it was prior to September 11, 2001.

REV_00200540

- Provides these same extended benefits automatically to states in which the President issued an emergency or major disaster declaration due to the direct effects of the terrorist attacks on September 11, 2001.
- Provides these additional weeks of compensation at the same level as the prior weeks of unemployment compensation.
- Pays for the additional compensation entirely with federal dollars.
- Maintains this program for 18 months.

Providing $3 Billion in Special National Emergency Grants for Income Support, Certain Health Care Premiums and Job Training

National Emergency Grants (NEGs) are federal grants administered by the Secretary of Labor, and they may be awarded to any state experiencing plant closings or mass layoffs. Currently, the grants may be used to support job training and reemployment services and to make certain limited payments to individuals enrolled in training. The grants also may be used to help pay for certain services, such as childcare and transportation, to help individuals complete training and transition back to work.

In some states, local regions and communities are suffering due to mass layoffs and plant closings caused by the September 11 tragedy. In order to provide assistance to these communities and populations, the President proposes temporarily expanding the National Emergency Grant program and providing $3 billion to assist dislocated workers during this recovery period. This emergency expansion will be maintained for 18 months.

Under this temporary expansion of the program, grants may be used by states to help ensure that dislocated workers: (i) maintain health insurance coverage; (ii) receive some form of income support during the recovery period; and (iii) return to the workforce as quickly as possible with the help of job training and job search assistance.

Specifically, under the program, states experiencing a major plant closure, mass layoff or multiple layoffs or dislocations are eligible for a special National Emergency Grant if the Governor of a state certifies that the events of September 11, 2001 contributed importantly to the closure, layoffs, or dislocations.
Grants could be used by the states to:

- ✓ pay up to 75% of health care premiums covered by COBRA for up to ten months for laid off or dislocated workers (COBRA is a federal law that gives many workers the option of continuing their employer-provided health insurance -- at their own cost -- when they are laid off);
- ✓ provide additional weeks of income support for individuals who have used up their unemployment compensation and are not in states eligible for the Emergency Extended Unemployment Compensation program -- as long as those individuals are enrolled in training;
- ✓ provide income support payments for individuals who are ineligible for unemployment compensation but are able to demonstrate a sufficient attachment to employment -- as long as those individuals are enrolled in training; and

- ✓ provide additional dollars to provide a full array of job search and training services, including customized training, placement assistance and relocation expenses.

Encouraging Americans to Take Advantage of Existing Services

For all Americans who suffer job loss, there continue to be many existing services to help them through this difficult time. The Department of Labor, in cooperation with the states, currently administers and helps fund several programs to assist Americans financially during times of unemployment and help them improve their skills and get back to work quickly. The President's FY 2002 budget included over $6 billion for these programs. Available services include:

- Job training;
- Vocational, career and personal counseling, including grief counseling;
- Comprehensive assessment of employability, development of a re-employment plan, workshops on interviewing and resume preparation;
- Job search and job placement assistance and useful labor market information;
- Needs-related payments;
- Supportive services to help the individual to return to the workforce and/or complete training, including transportation assistance, child care, dependent care; and
- Relocation expenses.

Helping States Provide Health Insurance for Lower-Income Workers and Their Families by Announcing the Availability of $11 Billion in Unspent Funds

Currently, states can apply for expedited review of proposals to expand the health insurance coverage they offer through Medicaid and the State Children's Health Insurance Program (SCHIP). The Department of Health and Human Services is announcing that states have $11 billion in unspent S-CHIP match funds available immediately to support these expansions -- in addition to the $3.1 billion in SCHIP allocations for FY 2002.

- Since January, HHS has approved state plan amendments and waivers that are projected to expand health insurance coverage to 1.5 million Americans and enhanced benefits for another 3.5 million Americans.

- To speed further expansions of coverage, especially to cover the majority of uninsured Americans who have low incomes, an expedited review process is available through the Health Insurance Flexibility and Accountability (HIFA) Initiative.

- HHS will also provide expedited review for health insurance coverage expansions that assist workers who have lost their jobs.

REV_00200542

- To support these expansions, the Department of Health and Human Services is announcing that $11 billion in match funds are available now to virtually all states.

- With substantial funding and a rapid, flexible review process, states have an unprecedented opportunity to implement health insurance coverage expansions best suited to the needs of their citizens in this difficult time.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS ON THE PRESIDENT'S BACK TO WORK RELIEF PACKAGE

Q: Does the President's Back to Work Relief Package provide relief only to employees laid off by the airlines and related industries?

No. Any workers who are laid off because of the events of September 11 are potentially eligible for some form of relief under the President's proposal.

Q: What is the new Emergency Extended Unemployment Compensation program?

The new Emergency Extended Unemployment Compensation (EEUC) program will provide up to 13 extra weeks of unemployment benefits in states where unemployment has increased by 30% since the terrorist attacks. These extra benefits will be available to workers who lost their jobs after September 11 and who have exhausted their regular unemployment benefits.

Q: How does the Emergency Extended Unemployment Compensation program work?

A state can "trigger" EEUC if: (1) there has been a Presidentially-declared disaster or emergency in the state resulting from the September 11 attack; or (2) the state's total unemployment rate for a rolling three month period increases to 30 percent over what it was for the three months prior to September 2001.

Currently, most workers are eligible for 26 weeks of regular unemployment benefits if they lose their jobs. In states that trigger EEUC, the President's proposal would provide an additional 13 weeks of benefits to individuals who lost their jobs after September 11 and have exhausted all of their regular state unemployment benefits.

Q: How would the special National Emergency Grants work?

The special National Emergency Grant provides additional funding to the states to help ensure an effective response to significant worker dislocation resulting from the September 11 terrorist attack. Governors submit applications to the Department of Labor for National Emergency Grants, and the Secretary of Labor awards them under the Workforce Investment Act. Grants may be awarded to a state affected by plant closures, mass layoffs, or multiple layoffs if the governor certifies that the events of September 11 contributed importantly to the closures or layoffs. The grants provide the flexibility to target relief directly to the communities and populations hardest hit by the consequences of the September 11 attacks. The President proposes providing an additional $3 billion for these grants.

Q: What can the National Emergency Grants be used for?

Governors can use the grant money to provide the following relief to eligible individuals:

- ✓ Pay up to 75% of health care premiums covered by COBRA for up to ten months.
- ✓ Provide additional weeks of income support for individuals enrolled in training who have exhausted their unemployment compensation.
- ✓ Provide income support payments for individuals enrolled in training who are ineligible for unemployment compensation.
- ✓ Provide a full array of job search and training services, including customized training, placement assistance and relocation expenses.

Q: What is COBRA?

COBRA (the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act) gives workers who had health insurance through covered employers the right to continue coverage at their own expense if they lose their jobs.

Q: How does the COBRA continuation coverage payment work?

Governors who receive National Emergency Grants may provide dislocated workers up to 75% of their monthly COBRA payment for up to 10 months. In order to receive the COBRA continuation coverage payments, the dislocated workers must be engaged in employment and training activities through the public workforce investment system. Individuals may receive COBRA continuation coverage payments simultaneously with unemployment benefits or other income support.

Q: How would the SCHIP funds help dislocated workers?

Some dislocated workers, especially those with lower incomes, are not eligible for COBRA continuation coverage when they lose their jobs. The Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) has developed an expedited process for helping states expand coverage through Medicaid and the State Children's Health Insurance Program (SCHIP) that can help such workers and their families. This year, HHS has already approved Medicaid and S-CHIP expansions that will make low-cost health insurance coverage available for an additional 1.5 million Americans. HHS has also identified $11 billion in unspent S-CHIP matching funds from previous years that are available now to provide enhanced Federal matches for further expansions of health insurance coverage by states. Enhanced Federal matching means that, depending on the state, the Federal government would pay for 65% to 83% of the costs of covering additional lower-income persons and their families. Rapid review and enhanced-match funds mean that states have an unprecedented opportunity to expand their health insurance programs in the way that is best suited to the needs of their residents.

Working to Help America's Workers

Since the tragic events of September 11th, the Department of Labor – led by Secretary Chao -- has mobilized its resources to help American workers affected by the disaster – those providing rescue and recovery, those displaced from their jobs, and those deployed in service to our nation.

Helping the Workers Providing Rescue and Recovery

- ✓ OSHA joined EPA in providing extensive environmental and occupational safety monitoring data of the World Trade Center site, including tests of more than 800 ambient air samples and nearly 200 dust samples.
- ✓ OSHA worked with the FBI to provide basic training about possible onsite hazards and the use of personal protective equipment and respirators to FBI investigative personnel.
- ✓ OSHA worked with Consolidated Edison to ensure safety for employees who are digging trenches because of leaking underground gas lines.
- ✓ The Office of Worker Compensation Claims ("OWCP") is expediting workers' compensation claims for eligible federal staff and emergency personnel.

Helping the Workers Displaced from their Jobs

- ✓ OSHA experts hit the ground in NYC, monitoring for possible contaminants at buildings near the disaster site to determine whether it was safe for workers to return.
- ✓ New York has received $25 million in National Emergency Grants to aid dislocated workers
- ✓ New York has received $3.5 million to bolster its unemployment insurance infrastructure
- ✓ Requests from Virginia and Minnesota are pending
- ✓ Unemployment insurance is providing temporary wage replacements for eligible workers who lost their jobs or have been laid off as a result.
- ✓ In response to alerts of potential staffing cuts by businesses nationwide, states are sending in Rapid Response Services teams under the leadership of the Employment and Training Administration to help assess the needs of 70,000 employees before they are laid off.
- ✓ The ETA supports a $1.2 billion state and local workforce services system nationwide to serve dislocated workers.
- ✓ Rapid Reemployment Services – one-stop centers in all 50 states – are helping dislocated workers find jobs, training, and unemployment counseling.
- ✓ The ETA toll-free hotline – 1-877-US2-JOBS - provides callers with information about their local help centers
- ✓ Four DOL websites, in partnership with state and local agencies, offer online job banks, job search help, and training information:

  www.ajb.org (America's Job Bank)
  www.acinet.org (America's Career InfoNet)
  www.alx.org (America's Learning eXchange)
  www.servicelocator.org (America's Service Locator)

- ✓ The DOL website www.dol.gov provides a wealth of information, contacts and links to job help sources.

Helping the Workers Deployed for Our Country

- ✓ To provide peace of mind for reservists called to active duty, the Department of Labor has reminded employers and employees that federal law requires employers to give reservists their jobs when they return from duty.

THE BACK TO WORK RELIEF PACKAGE

The President's Back to Work Relief Package is designed to:

- Help those who are losing their jobs because of the September 11 attacks
- Get people working again to help get our economy moving again
- Help ensure that displaced workers have access to health care

The terrorist attacks have affected our economy and many Americans have lost their jobs. The President wants to strengthen America's economy, support Americans while they get through this tough economic time, and help put our people back to work.

The terrorist attacks of September 11 had a devastating and direct impact on the American worker and the American economy. The attacks were a shock to our conscience and they were a shock to our economy. Businesses have lost customers. Consumers and investors have lost confidence. And working people are losing jobs.

We must do everything we can to jump-start our economy – we must do everything we can to make sure people who have been laid off can find work. The President's package will give relief to those who are the hardest hit economically by the attacks.

The Back to Work Relief Package

☑ Temporarily extends unemployment benefits by 13 weeks for Americans who lost their jobs as a direct result of the terrorist attacks.

☑ Provides $3 billion in special National Emergency Grants to help displaced workers maintain health coverage, supplement their income and receive job training. For example, funds could be used to pay up to 75% of health care premiums covered by COBRA for up to ten months.

☑ Makes $11 billion available to states to help low-income workers who are displaced from their jobs receive health insurance.

☑ Encourages displaced workers to take advantage of more than $6 billion in existing federal programs that provide job search services, including job training and placement.

THE BACK TO WORK RELIEF PACKAGE

SUMMARY

The terrorist attacks of September 11 had a devastating and direct impact on our country. Unfortunately, these attacks continue to affect the lives of Americans who have lost their jobs because of the shock to our nation's economy. The airlines and related industries have already announced approximately 100,000 layoffs, and analysts predict that this number could grow. We must not let the terrorist attacks harm one of our country's most valuable resources -- its workforce.

In order to help protect the individuals and families whose livelihoods are threatened because of the economic consequences of these attacks, President Bush proposes to provide relief immediately to those who are hardest hit. The Bush Administration's proposal focuses on mitigating the financial impacts of the terrorist attacks on our workforce while helping the workers who have been permanently laid off get back to work as quickly as possible through training and job search assistance.

To strengthen the safety net for workers during this crisis, President Bush proposes:

- Extending unemployment benefits to Americans whose jobs were affected by the attacks
- Providing $3 billion in special National Emergency Grants to help displaced workers maintain health coverage, supplement their income and receive job training
- Encouraging affected workers to take advantage of more than $6 billion in existing federal programs that provide job search, training, placement and other services.
- Making $11 billion available to states to help low-income workers displaced from their jobs to receive health insurance.

Extending Unemployment Benefits

In some states, and in particular those states that were direct targets of the terrorist attacks on September 11, the economic consequences of September 11 may cause many Americans to lose their jobs and make it harder for them to get back to work quickly. Under current law, states provide a certain number of weeks of unemployment compensation (usually 26 weeks) to individuals who become unemployed.

To help ensure that Americans are able to continue to support themselves and their families during this time of recovery, the President proposes a new temporary Emergency Extended Unemployment Compensation Program. This program:

- Provides thirteen additional weeks of unemployment compensation for individuals who become unemployed after September 11 in states where the state's total unemployment rate increases by 30% over what it was prior to September 11, 2001.

REV_00200563

- Provides these same extended benefits automatically to states in which the President issued an emergency or major disaster declaration due to the direct effects of the terrorist attacks on September 11, 2001.
- Provides these additional weeks of compensation at the same level as the prior weeks of unemployment compensation.
- Pays for the additional compensation entirely with federal dollars.
- Maintains this program for 18 months.

Providing $3 Billion in Special National Emergency Grants for Income Support, Certain Health Care Premiums and Job Training

National Emergency Grants (NEGs) are federal grants administered by the Secretary of Labor, and they may be awarded to any state experiencing plant closings or mass layoffs. Currently, the grants may be used to support job training and reemployment services and to make certain limited payments to individuals enrolled in training. The grants also may be used to help pay for certain services, such as childcare and transportation, to help individuals complete training and transition back to work.

In some states, local regions and communities are suffering due to mass layoffs and plant closings caused by the September 11 tragedy. In order to provide assistance to these communities and populations, the President proposes temporarily expanding the National Emergency Grant program and providing $3 billion to assist dislocated workers during this recovery period. This emergency expansion will be maintained for 18 months.

Under this temporary expansion of the program, grants may be used by states to help ensure that dislocated workers: (i) maintain health insurance coverage; (ii) receive some form of income support during the recovery period; and (iii) return to the workforce as quickly as possible with the help of job training and job search assistance.

Specifically, under the program, states experiencing a major plant closure, mass layoff or multiple layoffs or dislocations are eligible for a special National Emergency Grant if the Governor of a state certifies that the events of September 11, 2001 contributed importantly to the closure, layoffs, or dislocations.
Grants could be used by the states to:

- ✓ pay up to 75% of health care premiums covered by COBRA for up to ten months for laid off or dislocated workers (COBRA is a federal law that gives many workers the option of continuing their employer-provided health insurance -- at their own cost -- when they are laid off);
- ✓ provide additional weeks of income support for individuals who have used up their unemployment compensation and are not in states eligible for the Emergency Extended Unemployment Compensation program -- as long as those individuals are enrolled in training;
- ✓ provide income support payments for individuals who are ineligible for unemployment compensation but are able to demonstrate a sufficient attachment to employment -- as long as those individuals are enrolled in training; and

- ✓ provide additional dollars to provide a full array of job search and training services, including customized training, placement assistance and relocation expenses.

Encouraging Americans to Take Advantage of Existing Services

For all Americans who suffer job loss, there continue to be many existing services to help them through this difficult time. The Department of Labor, in cooperation with the states, currently administers and helps fund several programs to assist Americans financially during times of unemployment and help them improve their skills and get back to work quickly. The President's FY 2002 budget included over $6 billion for these programs. Available services include:

- Job training;
- Vocational, career and personal counseling, including grief counseling;
- Comprehensive assessment of employability, development of a re-employment plan, workshops on interviewing and resume preparation;
- Job search and job placement assistance and useful labor market information;
- Needs-related payments;
- Supportive services to help the individual to return to the workforce and/or complete training, including transportation assistance, child care, dependent care; and
- Relocation expenses.

Helping States Provide Health Insurance for Lower-Income Workers and Their Families by Announcing the Availability of $11 Billion in Unspent Funds

Currently, states can apply for expedited review of proposals to expand the health insurance coverage they offer through Medicaid and the State Children's Health Insurance Program (SCHIP). The Department of Health and Human Services is announcing that states have $11 billion in unspent S-CHIP match funds available immediately to support these expansions -- in addition to the $3.1 billion in SCHIP allocations for FY 2002.

- Since January, HHS has approved state plan amendments and waivers that are projected to expand health insurance coverage to 1.5 million Americans and enhanced benefits for another 3.5 million Americans.

- To speed further expansions of coverage, especially to cover the majority of uninsured Americans who have low incomes, an expedited review process is available through the Health Insurance Flexibility and Accountability (HIFA) Initiative.

- HHS will also provide expedited review for health insurance coverage expansions that assist workers who have lost their jobs.

REV_00200565

- To support these expansions, the Department of Health and Human Services is announcing that $11 billion in match funds are available now to virtually all states.

- With substantial funding and a rapid, flexible review process, states have an unprecedented opportunity to implement health insurance coverage expansions best suited to the needs of their citizens in this difficult time.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS ON THE PRESIDENT'S BACK TO WORK RELIEF PACKAGE

Q: Does the President's Back to Work Relief Package provide relief only to employees laid off by the airlines and related industries?

No. Any workers who are laid off because of the events of September 11 are potentially eligible for some form of relief under the President's proposal.

Q: What is the new Emergency Extended Unemployment Compensation program?

The new Emergency Extended Unemployment Compensation (EEUC) program will provide up to 13 extra weeks of unemployment benefits in states where unemployment has increased by 30% since the terrorist attacks. These extra benefits will be available to workers who lost their jobs after September 11 and who have exhausted their regular unemployment benefits.

Q: How does the Emergency Extended Unemployment Compensation program work?

A state can "trigger" EEUC if: (1) there has been a Presidentially-declared disaster or emergency in the state resulting from the September 11 attack; or (2) the state's total unemployment rate for a rolling three month period increases to 30 percent over what it was for the three months prior to September 2001.

Currently, most workers are eligible for 26 weeks of regular unemployment benefits if they lose their jobs. In states that trigger EEUC, the President's proposal would provide an additional 13 weeks of benefits to individuals who lost their jobs after September 11 and have exhausted all of their regular state unemployment benefits.

Q: How would the special National Emergency Grants work?

The special National Emergency Grant provides additional funding to the states to help ensure an effective response to significant worker dislocation resulting from the September 11 terrorist attack. Governors submit applications to the Department of Labor for National Emergency Grants, and the Secretary of Labor awards them under the Workforce Investment Act. Grants may be awarded to a state affected by plant closures, mass layoffs, or multiple layoffs if the governor certifies that the events of September 11 contributed importantly to the closures or layoffs. The grants provide the flexibility to target relief directly to the communities and populations hardest hit by the consequences of the September 11 attacks. The President proposes providing an additional $3 billion for these grants.

Q: What can the National Emergency Grants be used for?

Governors can use the grant money to provide the following relief to eligible individuals:

- ✓ Pay up to 75% of health care premiums covered by COBRA for up to ten months.
- ✓ Provide additional weeks of income support for individuals enrolled in training who have exhausted their unemployment compensation.
- ✓ Provide income support payments for individuals enrolled in training who are ineligible for unemployment compensation.
- ✓ Provide a full array of job search and training services, including customized training, placement assistance and relocation expenses.

Q: What is COBRA?

COBRA (the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act) gives workers who had health insurance through covered employers the right to continue coverage at their own expense if they lose their jobs.

Q: How does the COBRA continuation coverage payment work?

Governors who receive National Emergency Grants may provide dislocated workers up to 75% of their monthly COBRA payment for up to 10 months. In order to receive the COBRA continuation coverage payments, the dislocated workers must be engaged in employment and training activities through the public workforce investment system. Individuals may receive COBRA continuation coverage payments simultaneously with unemployment benefits or other income support.

Q: How would the SCHIP funds help dislocated workers?

Some dislocated workers, especially those with lower incomes, are not eligible for COBRA continuation coverage when they lose their jobs. The Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) has developed an expedited process for helping states expand coverage through Medicaid and the State Children's Health Insurance Program (SCHIP) that can help such workers and their families. This year, HHS has already approved Medicaid and S-CHIP expansions that will make low-cost health insurance coverage available for an additional 1.5 million Americans. HHS has also identified $11 billion in unspent S-CHIP matching funds from previous years that are available now to provide enhanced Federal matches for further expansions of health insurance coverage by states. Enhanced Federal matching means that, depending on the state, the Federal government would pay for 65% to 83% of the costs of covering additional lower-income persons and their families. Rapid review and enhanced-match funds mean that states have an unprecedented opportunity to expand their health insurance programs in the way that is best suited to the needs of their residents.

Working to Help America's Workers

Since the tragic events of September 11th, the Department of Labor – led by Secretary Chao -- has mobilized its resources to help American workers affected by the disaster – those providing rescue and recovery, those displaced from their jobs, and those deployed in service to our nation.

Helping the Workers Providing Rescue and Recovery

- ✓ OSHA joined EPA in providing extensive environmental and occupational safety monitoring data of the World Trade Center site, including tests of more than 800 ambient air samples and nearly 200 dust samples.
- ✓ OSHA worked with the FBI to provide basic training about possible onsite hazards and the use of personal protective equipment and respirators to FBI investigative personnel.
- ✓ OSHA worked with Consolidated Edison to ensure safety for employees who are digging trenches because of leaking underground gas lines.
- ✓ The Office of Worker Compensation Claims ("OWCP") is expediting workers' compensation claims for eligible federal staff and emergency personnel.

Helping the Workers Displaced from their Jobs

- ✓ OSHA experts hit the ground in NYC, monitoring for possible contaminants at buildings near the disaster site to determine whether it was safe for workers to return.
- ✓ New York has received $25 million in National Emergency Grants to aid dislocated workers
- ✓ New York has received $3.5 million to bolster its unemployment insurance infrastructure
- ✓ Requests from Virginia and Minnesota are pending
- ✓ Unemployment insurance is providing temporary wage replacements for eligible workers who lost their jobs or have been laid off as a result.
- ✓ In response to alerts of potential staffing cuts by businesses nationwide, states are sending in Rapid Response Services teams under the leadership of the Employment and Training Administration to help assess the needs of 70,000 employees before they are laid off.
- ✓ The ETA supports a $1.2 billion state and local workforce services system nationwide to serve dislocated workers.
- ✓ Rapid Reemployment Services – one-stop centers in all 50 states – are helping dislocated workers find jobs, training, and unemployment counseling.
- ✓ The ETA toll-free hotline – 1-877-US2-JOBS - provides callers with information about their local help centers
- ✓ Four DOL websites, in partnership with state and local agencies, offer online job banks, job search help, and training information:

  www.ajb.org (America's Job Bank)
  www.acinet.org (America's Career InfoNet)
  www.alx.org (America's Learning eXchange)
  www.servicelocator.org (America's Service Locator)

- ✓ The DOL website www.dol.gov provides a wealth of information, contacts and links to job help sources.

Helping the Workers Deployed for Our Country

- ✓ To provide peace of mind for reservists called to active duty, the Department of Labor has reminded employers and employees that federal law requires employers to give reservists their jobs when they return from duty.

(1) Arab Americans, Muslim Americans, and Americans from South Asia play a vital role in our Nation and are entitled to nothing less than the full rights of every American.

REMARKS BY THE PRESIDENT
ON THE ECONOMY

The Rose Garden

THE PRESIDENT: Good afternoon. I just concluded a meeting with my economic policy team. Secretary O'Neill has been up on the Hill talking to members of Congress and brought back some encouraging news. And that is, the United States Congress is interested in working as quickly as possible to pass an economic stimulus package.

I want to remind the American people that the Congress has been working with us to provide relief. We passed monies for disaster relief, monies to help the people in New York. We passed appropriations to help beef up our security. We passed appropriations to help airlines. Yesterday, I proposed additional expenditures to help workers who have been laid off as a result of the September 11th tragedy. That spending totals about $60 billion.

And in order to stimulate the economy, Congress doesn't need to spend any more money -- what they need to do is to cut taxes. So I propose this: I propose that the United States Congress, as quickly as possible, pass tax relief equal to or a little bit greater than the monies that we have already appropriated.

Tax relief should come in this kind of form. One, that we ought to stimulate demand by cutting -- accelerating the marginal tax cuts that we've passed and I've signed. As well as, there ought to be a provision in the tax relief package to make sure that low- and moderate-income workers get tax relief, as well.

And on the business side, we need to stimulate investment by allowing for enhanced expensing of capital expenditures, and we believe they ought to eliminate alternative minimum tax on corporate America.

This is a package which will dovetail nicely with the marginal cuts and the increased child credit that will kick in next year as well. The American people expect us to act, and here is a way for us to act. We've spent money, and that will have a stimulative effect of some kind.

But to make sure that the economy gets the boost it needs, Congress ought to come together quickly and accept the ideas that I've just laid out. We believe that will be the best way to make sure that America recovers from the terrorist attack of September the 11th.

The terrorists attacked us, but they did not diminish our spirit, nor did they undermine the fundamentals of our economy. And we believe if we act expeditiously, that those fundamentals will kick back in and people will be able to find work again.

I hope you all have a fine weekend. Thank you all very much.

RADIO ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT
TO THE NATION

THE PRESIDENT: Good morning. Today I want to update Americans on our global campaign against terror. The United States is presenting a clear choice to every nation: Stand with the civilized world, or stand with the terrorists.

And for those nations that stand with the terrorists, there will be a heavy price.

America is determined to oppose the state sponsors of terror. Yet we are equally determined to respect and help the men and women those regimes oppress.
Our enemy is not the Arab world. Many friendly Arab governments are, themselves, the targets of extremist terror. Our enemy is not Islam, a good and peace-loving faith, that brings direction and comfort to over one billion people, including millions of Americans. And our enemy is not the people of any nation, even when their leaders harbor terrorists. Our enemy is the terrorists themselves, and the regimes that shelter and sustain them.

Afghanistan is a case in point. Its Taliban regime has made that nation into a sanctuary and training ground for international terrorists -- terrorists who have killed innocent citizens of many nations, including our own. The Taliban promotes terror abroad, and practices terror against its people, oppressing women and persecuting all who dissent.

The Taliban has been given the opportunity to surrender all the terrorists in Afghanistan and to close down their camps and operations. Full warning has been given, and time is running out.

The Afghan people, however, are the victims of oppression, famine and misrule. Many refugees from that unfortunate nation are on the move, and sadly, many Afghans are on the verge of starvation.

America respects the Afghan people, their long tradition and their proud independence. And we will help them in this time of confusion and crisis in their country.

America has long been the largest source of food and humanitarian assistance to Afghanistan. This week I announced an additional $320 million in aid to the Afghan people, to those within Afghanistan and those who have fled across borders. Despite efforts by the Taliban to disrupt these critical aid shipments, we will deliver food and seeds, vaccines and medicines by truck, and even by draft animals. Conditions permitting, we will bring help directly to the people of Afghanistan by air drops.

This aid will help Afghans make it through the upcoming winter. For the longer-term, I urge Congress to make funds available so that one day the United States can contribute, along with other friends of Afghanistan, to the reconstruction and development of that troubled nation.

Helping people in great need is a central part of the Jewish, Christian and Islamic traditions, as well as many other faiths. It is also a central part of the American tradition. Even as we fight evil regimes we are generous to the people they oppress. Following World War II, America fed and rebuilt Japan and Germany, and their people became some of our closest friends in the world.

In the struggle ahead, we will act in accordance with American ideals. We're offering help and friendship to the Afghan people. It is their Taliban rulers, and the terrorists they harbor, who have much to fear.

Thank you for listening.

RADIO ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT
TO THE NATION

THE PRESIDENT: Good morning. Today I want to update Americans on our global campaign against terror. The United States is presenting a clear choice to every nation: Stand with the civilized world, or stand with the terrorists.
And for those nations that stand with the terrorists, there will be a heavy price.

America is determined to oppose the state sponsors of terror. Yet we are equally determined to respect and help the men and women those regimes oppress.
Our enemy is not the Arab world. Many friendly Arab governments are, themselves, the targets of extremist terror. Our enemy is not Islam, a good and peace-loving faith, that brings direction and comfort to over one billion people, including millions of Americans. And our enemy is not the people of any nation, even when their leaders harbor terrorists. Our enemy is the terrorists themselves, and the regimes that shelter and sustain them.

Afghanistan is a case in point. Its Taliban regime has made that nation into a sanctuary and training ground for international terrorists -- terrorists who have killed innocent citizens of many nations, including our own. The Taliban promotes terror abroad, and practices terror against its people, oppressing women and persecuting all who dissent.

The Taliban has been given the opportunity to surrender all the terrorists in Afghanistan and to close down their camps and operations. Full warning has been given, and time is running out.

The Afghan people, however, are the victims of oppression, famine and misrule. Many refugees from that unfortunate nation are on the move, and sadly, many Afghans are on the verge of starvation.

America respects the Afghan people, their long tradition and their proud independence. And we will help them in this time of confusion and crisis in their country.

America has long been the largest source of food and humanitarian assistance to Afghanistan. This week I announced an additional $320 million in aid to the Afghan people, to those within Afghanistan and those who have fled across borders. Despite efforts by the Taliban to disrupt these critical aid shipments, we will deliver food and seeds, vaccines and medicines by truck, and even by draft animals. Conditions permitting, we will bring help directly to the people of Afghanistan by air drops.

This aid will help Afghans make it through the upcoming winter. For the longer-term, I urge Congress to make funds available so that one day the United States can contribute, along with other friends of Afghanistan, to the reconstruction and development of that troubled nation.

Helping people in great need is a central part of the Jewish, Christian and Islamic traditions, as well as many other faiths. It is also a central part of the American tradition. Even as we fight evil regimes we are generous to the people they oppress. Following World War II, America fed and rebuilt Japan and Germany, and their people became some of our closest friends in the world.

In the struggle ahead, we will act in accordance with American ideals.
We're offering help and friendship to the Afghan people. It is their Taliban rulers, and the terrorists they harbor, who have much to fear.

Thank you for listening.

END

REMARKS BY THE PRESIDENT
ON THE ECONOMY

The Rose Garden

THE PRESIDENT: Good afternoon. I just concluded a meeting with my economic policy team. Secretary O'Neill has been up on the Hill talking to members of Congress and brought back some encouraging news. And that is, the United States Congress is interested in working as quickly as possible to pass an economic stimulus package.

I want to remind the American people that the Congress has been working with us to provide relief. We passed monies for disaster relief, monies to help the people in New York. We passed appropriations to help beef up our security. We passed appropriations to help airlines. Yesterday, I proposed additional expenditures to help workers who have been laid off as a result of the September 11th tragedy. That spending totals about $60 billion.

And in order to stimulate the economy, Congress doesn't need to spend any more money -- what they need to do is to cut taxes. So I propose this: I propose that the United States Congress, as quickly as possible, pass tax relief equal to or a little bit greater than the monies that we have already appropriated.

Tax relief should come in this kind of form. One, that we ought to stimulate demand by cutting -- accelerating the marginal tax cuts that we've passed and I've signed. As well as, there ought to be a provision in the tax relief package to make sure that low- and moderate-income workers get tax relief, as well.

And on the business side, we need to stimulate investment by allowing for enhanced expensing of capital expenditures, and we believe they ought to eliminate alternative minimum tax on corporate America.

This is a package which will dovetail nicely with the marginal cuts and the increased child credit that will kick in next year as well. The American people expect us to act, and here is a way for us to act. We've spent money, and that will have a stimulative effect of some kind.

But to make sure that the economy gets the boost it needs, Congress ought to come together quickly and accept the ideas that I've just laid out. We believe that will be the best way to make sure that America recovers from the terrorist attack of September the 11th.

The terrorists attacked us, but they did not diminish our spirit, nor did they undermine the fundamentals of our economy. And we believe if we act expeditiously, that those fundamentals will kick back in and people will be able to find work again.

I hope you all have a fine weekend. Thank you all very much.

END 2:38 P.M. EDT

REMARKS BY THE PRESIDENT
ON THE ECONOMY

The Rose Garden

THE PRESIDENT: Good afternoon. I just concluded a meeting with my economic policy team. Secretary O'Neill has been up on the Hill talking to members of Congress and brought back some encouraging news. And that is, the United States Congress is interested in working as quickly as possible to pass an economic stimulus package.

I want to remind the American people that the Congress has been working with us to provide relief. We passed monies for disaster relief, monies to help the people in New York. We passed appropriations to help beef up our security. We passed appropriations to help airlines. Yesterday, I proposed additional expenditures to help workers who have been laid off as a result of the September 11th tragedy. That spending totals about $60 billion.

And in order to stimulate the economy, Congress doesn't need to spend any more money -- what they need to do is to cut taxes. So I propose this: I propose that the United States Congress, as quickly as possible, pass tax relief equal to or a little bit greater than the monies that we have already appropriated.

Tax relief should come in this kind of form. One, that we ought to stimulate demand by cutting -- accelerating the marginal tax cuts that we've passed and I've signed. As well as, there ought to be a provision in the tax relief package to make sure that low- and moderate-income workers get tax relief, as well.

And on the business side, we need to stimulate investment by allowing for enhanced expensing of capital expenditures, and we believe they ought to eliminate alternative minimum tax on corporate America.

This is a package which will dovetail nicely with the marginal cuts and the increased child credit that will kick in next year as well. The American people expect us to act, and here is a way for us to act. We've spent money, and that will have a stimulative effect of some kind.

But to make sure that the economy gets the boost it needs, Congress ought to come together quickly and accept the ideas that I've just laid out. We believe that will be the best way to make sure that America recovers from the terrorist attack of September the 11th.

The terrorists attacked us, but they did not diminish our spirit, nor did they undermine the fundamentals of our economy. And we believe if we act expeditiously, that those fundamentals will kick back in and people will be able to find work again.

I hope you all have a fine weekend. Thank you all very much.

REMARKS BY THE PRESIDENT
ON THE ECONOMY

The Rose Garden

THE PRESIDENT: Good afternoon. I just concluded a meeting with my economic policy team. Secretary O'Neill has been up on the Hill talking to members of Congress and brought back some encouraging news. And that is, the United States Congress is interested in working as quickly as possible to pass an economic stimulus package.

I want to remind the American people that the Congress has been working with us to provide relief. We passed monies for disaster relief, monies to help the people in New York. We passed appropriations to help beef up our security. We passed appropriations to help airlines. Yesterday, I proposed additional expenditures to help workers who have been laid off as a result of the September 11th tragedy. That spending totals about $60 billion.

And in order to stimulate the economy, Congress doesn't need to spend any more money -- what they need to do is to cut taxes. So I propose this: I propose that the United States Congress, as quickly as possible, pass tax relief equal to or a little bit greater than the monies that we have already appropriated.

Tax relief should come in this kind of form. One, that we ought to stimulate demand by cutting -- accelerating the marginal tax cuts that we've passed and I've signed. As well as, there ought to be a provision in the tax relief package to make sure that low- and moderate-income workers get tax relief, as well.

And on the business side, we need to stimulate investment by allowing for enhanced expensing of capital expenditures, and we believe they ought to eliminate alternative minimum tax on corporate America.

This is a package which will dovetail nicely with the marginal cuts and the increased child credit that will kick in next year as well. The American people expect us to act, and here is a way for us to act. We've spent money, and that will have a stimulative effect of some kind.

But to make sure that the economy gets the boost it needs, Congress ought to come together quickly and accept the ideas that I've just laid out. We believe that will be the best way to make sure that America recovers from the terrorist attack of September the 11th.

The terrorists attacked us, but they did not diminish our spirit, nor did they undermine the fundamentals of our economy. And we believe if we act expeditiously, that those fundamentals will kick back in and people will be able to find work again.

I hope you all have a fine weekend. Thank you all very much.

REMARKS BY THE PRESIDENT
ON THE ECONOMY

The Rose Garden

THE PRESIDENT: Good afternoon. I just concluded a meeting with my economic policy team. Secretary O'Neill has been up on the Hill talking to members of Congress and brought back some encouraging news. And that is, the United States Congress is interested in working as quickly as possible to pass an economic stimulus package.

I want to remind the American people that the Congress has been working with us to provide relief. We passed monies for disaster relief, monies to help the people in New York. We passed appropriations to help beef up our security. We passed appropriations to help airlines. Yesterday, I proposed additional expenditures to help workers who have been laid off as a result of the September 11th tragedy. That spending totals about $60 billion.

And in order to stimulate the economy, Congress doesn't need to spend any more money -- what they need to do is to cut taxes. So I propose this: I propose that the United States Congress, as quickly as possible, pass tax relief equal to or a little bit greater than the monies that we have already appropriated.

Tax relief should come in this kind of form. One, that we ought to stimulate demand by cutting -- accelerating the marginal tax cuts that we've passed and I've signed. As well as, there ought to be a provision in the tax relief package to make sure that low- and moderate-income workers get tax relief, as well.

And on the business side, we need to stimulate investment by allowing for enhanced expensing of capital expenditures, and we believe they ought to eliminate alternative minimum tax on corporate America.

This is a package which will dovetail nicely with the marginal cuts and the increased child credit that will kick in next year as well. The American people expect us to act, and here is a way for us to act. We've spent money, and that will have a stimulative effect of some kind.

But to make sure that the economy gets the boost it needs, Congress ought to come together quickly and accept the ideas that I've just laid out. We believe that will be the best way to make sure that America recovers from the terrorist attack of September the 11th.

The terrorists attacked us, but they did not diminish our spirit, nor did they undermine the fundamentals of our economy. And we believe if we act expeditiously, that those fundamentals will kick back in and people will be able to find work again.

I hope you all have a fine weekend. Thank you all very much.

RADIO ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT
TO THE NATION

THE PRESIDENT: Good morning. Today I want to update Americans on our global campaign against terror. The United States is presenting a clear choice to every nation: Stand with the civilized world, or stand with the terrorists. And for those nations that stand with the terrorists, there will be a heavy price.

America is determined to oppose the state sponsors of terror. Yet we are equally determined to respect and help the men and women those regimes oppress. Our enemy is not the Arab world. Many friendly Arab governments are, themselves, the targets of extremist terror. Our enemy is not Islam, a good and peace-loving faith, that brings direction and comfort to over one billion people, including millions of Americans. And our enemy is not the people of any nation, even when their leaders harbor terrorists. Our enemy is the terrorists themselves, and the regimes that shelter and sustain them.

Afghanistan is a case in point. Its Taliban regime has made that nation into a sanctuary and training ground for international terrorists -- terrorists who have killed innocent citizens of many nations, including our own. The Taliban promotes terror abroad, and practices terror against its people, oppressing women and persecuting all who dissent.

The Taliban has been given the opportunity to surrender all the terrorists in Afghanistan and to close down their camps and operations. Full warning has been given, and time is running out.

The Afghan people, however, are the victims of oppression, famine and misrule. Many refugees from that unfortunate nation are on the move, and sadly, many Afghans are on the verge of starvation.

America respects the Afghan people, their long tradition and their proud independence. And we will help them in this time of confusion and crisis in their country.

America has long been the largest source of food and humanitarian assistance to Afghanistan. This week I announced an additional $320 million in aid to the Afghan people, to those within Afghanistan and those who have fled across borders. Despite efforts by the Taliban to disrupt these critical aid shipments, we will deliver food and seeds, vaccines and medicines by truck, and even by draft animals. Conditions permitting, we will bring help directly to the people of Afghanistan by air drops.

This aid will help Afghans make it through the upcoming winter. For the longer-term, I urge Congress to make funds available so that one day the United States can contribute, along with other friends of Afghanistan, to the reconstruction and development of that troubled nation.

Helping people in great need is a central part of the Jewish, Christian and Islamic traditions, as well as many other faiths. It is also a central part of the American tradition. Even as we fight evil regimes we are generous to the people they oppress. Following World War II, America fed and rebuilt Japan and Germany, and their people became some of our closest friends in the world.

In the struggle ahead, we will act in accordance with American ideals. We're offering help and friendship to the Afghan people. It is their Taliban rulers, and the terrorists they harbor, who have much to fear.

Thank you for listening.

TO THE NATION

THE PRESIDENT: Good morning. Today I want to update Americans on our global campaign against terror. The United States is presenting a clear choice to every nation: Stand with the civilized world, or stand with the terrorists.
And for those nations that stand with the terrorists, there will be a heavy price.

America is determined to oppose the state sponsors of terror. Yet we are equally determined to respect and help the men and women those regimes oppress.
Our enemy is not the Arab world. Many friendly Arab governments are, themselves, the targets of extremist terror. Our enemy is not Islam, a good and peace-loving faith, that brings direction and comfort to over one billion people, including millions of Americans. And our enemy is not the people of any nation, even when their leaders harbor terrorists. Our enemy is the terrorists themselves, and the regimes that shelter and sustain them.

Afghanistan is a case in point. Its Taliban regime has made that nation into a sanctuary and training ground for international terrorists -- terrorists who have killed innocent citizens of many nations, including our own. The Taliban promotes terror abroad, and practices terror against its people, oppressing women and persecuting all who dissent.

The Taliban has been given the opportunity to surrender all the terrorists in Afghanistan and to close down their camps and operations. Full warning has been given, and time is running out.

The Afghan people, however, are the victims of oppression, famine and misrule. Many refugees from that unfortunate nation are on the move, and sadly, many Afghans are on the verge of starvation.

America respects the Afghan people, their long tradition and their proud independence. And we will help them in this time of confusion and crisis in their country.

America has long been the largest source of food and humanitarian assistance to Afghanistan. This week I announced an additional $320 million in aid to the Afghan people, to those within Afghanistan and those who have fled across borders. Despite efforts by the Taliban to disrupt these critical aid shipments, we will deliver food and seeds, vaccines and medicines by truck, and even by draft animals. Conditions permitting, we will bring help directly to the people of Afghanistan by air drops.

This aid will help Afghans make it through the upcoming winter. For the longer-term, I urge Congress to make funds available so that one day the United States can contribute, along with other friends of Afghanistan, to the reconstruction and development of that troubled nation.

Helping people in great need is a central part of the Jewish, Christian and Islamic traditions, as well as many other faiths. It is also a central part of the American tradition. Even as we fight evil regimes we are generous to the people they oppress. Following World War II, America fed and rebuilt Japan and Germany, and their people became some of our closest friends in the world.

In the struggle ahead, we will act in accordance with American ideals. We're offering help and friendship to the Afghan people. It is their Taliban rulers, and the terrorists they harbor, who have much to fear.

Thank you for listening.

END
